COOLIDGE AND CALLES REPORTED IN WIRE TALK ON CHURCH CRISIS

Persons Close to Mexican President Say American Executive Gave Assurance of Friendship.

STRONG PRESSURE FOR U. S. INTERVENTION

Coolidge, However, Is Said to Have Told Calles of Intention to Keep Hands Off.

By ARTHUR CONSTANTINE,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Mexico City, Aug. 9.—A direct conversation by wire between Presidents Coolidge and Calles took place yesterday, the correspondent was informed by persons in close touch with the Mexican President. They are said to have conversed for about an hour about the church and state conflict in Mexico. President Coolidge is understood to have taken the initiative in the conversation. According to the informants, he got into communication with President Calles at Chapultepec Castle and began the unprecedented conversation with a friendly inquiry about the status of the conflict.

It is understood President Calles replied that the Government was in a difficult situation and that Mr. Coolidge is said to have informed the Mexican executive that he desired to maintain friendly relations between the two Governments. Assurance of Friendship.

The report is that Mr. Coolidge, who the American Government was under heavy pressure to interfere in Mexico, said his sincere intention was to keep hands off. He assured President Calles he might count on the friendly attitude of the American Government, according to the informants, and President Calles expressed his satisfaction.

It is understood President Calles also informed the American President that reforms in existing laws were under consideration and that they would be introduced at the next session of Congress in September.

While little is divulged of the nature of the reforms which were being discussed by the two Presidents, it is understood in Mexico that the reforms will soften the religious decrees and regulations promulgated under the late President. President Coolidge is understood to have expressed his satisfaction that these laws were under consideration.

The utmost cordiality is said to have characterized the conversation.

(The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. of New York says that it makes no telephone connection with Mexico. Therefore, it is assumed the reported conference was carried on over telegraph lines.)

Churches Open as Usual.

Another Sunday has passed without any disturbance anywhere in Mexico. The churches, however, were filled with the faithful. It is estimated that 90 per cent of them were open as usual. It was a quiet Sunday.

Prohibition Age Sets Out to Dry Up Wet Detroit. Col. Hanlon Amazed by Daring of Liquor Runners, Arranges Patrol of Border.

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 9.—Action toward smashing the machinery set up by liquor runners and distributors in the Detroit area, said by officials to be "the wettest spot in the United States," is to begin today under the direction of Col. A. J. Hanlon, former West Point football player and Federal prohibition enforcement agent.

A continuous patrol of the Detroit River, over which smugglers have been shipping liquor from Canada, will demolish the great distributing market here, Col. Hanlon hopes. Eight patrol boats and 40 picked men now augment the regular Federal force.

"I never saw such indifference to prohibition officers in my life as prevails among the runners," Col. Hanlon said. "Daylight or darkness seems to make no difference to them. But we'll soon change that tune."

Surgeon Pumps Own Blood into Veins of Sinking Man. Yields Pint and Performs Operation Himself at Brooklyn Hospital, Then Drives Home.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—His patient at the point of death, Dr. John Black, 30 years old, an associate visiting surgeon of St. Catherine's Hospital, Brooklyn, transfused a pint of his own blood into the veins of Francis Dalton, a sign painter, suffering from ulcers of the stomach, which had sunk at 11:30 Saturday night. Regular blood donors were not available at the late hour and the blood of those who did respond was not suitable. Dr. Black himself operated the pump which drained his blood into the patient. Later, with the patient out of immediate danger, Dr. Black drove his automobile home.

Had Missive From Mother to Soldier of 138th Infantry Clutched in Hand When He Met Death.

A stop beside the highway to buy fresh fruit and vegetables at a roadside stand cost the life of Mrs. Frieda Anna Hunthausen, 26 years old, of 5432 Rhodes avenue, who was struck by an automobile yesterday as she crossed Olive street road to join her husband, Arthur J. Hunthausen, in his car.

The accident occurred at 1:30 p. m. at Ballas road where the Mrs. Hunthausen had seen an attractive display of farm products and had asked her husband to stop. He pulled up his machine on the north side of the road and they crossed to make some purchases which he took back to the car.

While he was stowing the goods in the machine Hunthausen heard a scream and crash and looked up to see his wife dragged past beneath the wheels of another automobile which had struck her as she crossed.

Emil J. Leuchtfeld, of 432 Fairview avenue, Webster Groves, driver of the machine, took Mrs. Hunthausen to Creve Coeur, where she was pronounced dead.

A coroner's verdict of accident was returned at Kirkwood today.

Clutching in his hand a letter from his mother to his father, Charles Peterson, a member of the 138th Infantry in camp at Nevada, Mo., Ray Eugene Peterson, 7 years old, was killed yesterday by an automobile, the driver of which was out with the car by himself for the first time since learning to drive three weeks ago.

Ray Eugene was knocked down as he crossed Grand boulevard just east of his home at 3527A Garfield avenue at 3:20 p. m., on his way to a mail box with his mother's letter. He died three hours later at Mulvaney Hospital of a fractured skull.

Clifton Kuntzmann, 18, of 4708 Natural Bridge avenue, driver of the car, testified at the inquest that he was a novice, out for the first time alone. He made no statement about the circumstances of the accident, but other witnesses declared it was unavoidable.

Motor Vehicle Accidents. Five persons were injured when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a one-man Park avenue street car at Eighteenth street and Chouteau avenue at 6:45 p. m. yesterday. Welma Lorraine Smith, 3 months old, suffered a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. Her father and mother, Granville and Ruby Smith, each 19, of 1084 Newstead avenue, were cut and bruised. Granville's cousin, Garney Smith, 19, of 4207A Norfolk avenue, suffered a fracture of the skull and concussion of the brain.

Louis Smith, 27, of 1916 St. Charles road, brother of Granville and driver of the automobile, was cut and bruised.

Theodore Grzegorek, 30, of Nashville, Ill., lost control of his automobile when it was sideswiped by a passing machine yesterday and crashed into the one-story frame house occupied by Mrs. Catherine Hetherington at 6516 South Broadway. BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Eleven lives were lost in a wave which swept Brant beach yesterday. Eight bodies have been recovered. Scores were swept from their feet when a giant wave suddenly rolled in from Lake Erie and engulfed the holiday crowds.

No plausible theory of the wave has been advanced other than it may have been the aftermath of a recent lake storm. Some of the bathers caught in its grip were powerless. Many of those who had taken advantage of the warm holiday to seek the beaches could not swim.

Many Rescued. There were numerous rescues and many unsuccessful attempts to answer screams for help. One man, Heinie Carstens, lost his life when he returned to the lake after bringing a girl ashore. He disappeared, far out, and hours later his body was washed in.

List of Known Dead. The other known dead are: Elmer and Yvette Henry of Kenmore. John Augustine of Buffalo. Hilda Timmerman and Howard Timmerman of Farnham, brother and sister. Anna Lange of Silver Creek. Glenn and Gladys Bronson of Brant, sisters. Anna Hartman of Buffalo. Eva Wanner, 19, of Buffalo. Blaine Nicholas, 18, of Buffalo, who was caught in the sweep at Brant, said it seemed as if he had suddenly stepped off a ledge into deep water. Then came the rush of water back from the beach like a mill race. Although Nicholas is a good swimmer, he could no more than hold his own against it, and once rolled from the grip, swam 15 minutes before he could touch bottom again.

One theory of the wave was that a slide of sand at the beach had occurred beneath the surface or that there had been a slight earth tremor somewhere beneath the lake.

Most of those who lost their lives were members of a party from the Lafayette Avenue Baptist Church of this city.

The beach where the tragedy occurred is about seven miles west of the Buffalo Municipal Bathing Beach at Angola, where more than 10,000 persons gathered yesterday. Fewer than 130 were in the water at Brant Beach when the wall of water came in.

Five Rescued by Human Chain. Five of those rescued were hauled to shore by means of a human chain reaching 500 feet from shore. Francis Ulrich, farthest out in the water at the end of this chain, would grasp the nearest struggling swimmer, give the signal and all would pull.

Weather conditions yesterday were ideal for the formation of a strong undertow such as caused the death of 10 persons. Meteorologist Spencer of the Weather Bureau said today. A steady 25-mile north wind was probably the cause, he said.

'BORAX BILL' WILSON DIES AT LOS ANGELES HOME

Won Nickname by Driving 20-Mule Team Across Continent to Advertise Product. By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 9.—William (Borax Bill) Wilson, 70, died at his home here yesterday of acute indigestion. He got his nickname when he drove a 20-mule team across the country from San Francisco to Bangor, Me., to advertise the product of F. M. Smith, who discovered vast deposits of borax in death valley.

Wilson was one of the first men in Tonopah, Nev., in 1900 during the mining boom. He made $50,000, but later went broke. He is said to have won and lost several fortunes. AID OF C. U. BECKER INDORSE OF MUCH PAPER WHICH LED TO BANK'S CLOSING

Name of Paul E. Cole, Cashier, Appears on Notes at Citizens' Security Depository of Englewood.

W. BLODGETT PRIEST SIGNATURE FOUND

Others Include Those of L. J. Smyth, Managing Editor of Becker's Journal at Excelsior Springs.

By a Staff Correspondent of the KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 9.—Paul E. Cole, cashier of the Citizens' Security Bank of Englewood and an associate of Secretary of State Charles U. Becker in a political publishing enterprise, was in disorder on a considerable part of the paper which led to the closing of the bank. The bank was used by Becker as a depository for State automobile license funds.

This has developed in preliminary inquiries into the bank's affairs, which are to be the subject of a thorough investigation by Finance Commissioner French and Attorney-General Gentry, and in which Gov. Baker has interested himself.

As has been told, some of the notes which figured in the bank's difficulties were signed by persons connected with the Missouri State Journal of Excelsior Springs, Becker's paper, or connected with the recent primary campaign, in which Becker was a leader of the opposition to Senator Williams.

One $250 note is said to have been signed by L. J. Smyth, managing editor of the State Journal, and two other notes for $250 each, by men connected with the publication. Another note, its amount stated variously as $1250 and $1500, is said to bear the signature of W. Blodgett Priest of St. Louis, who was the wet candidate for the Republican nomination for the Senate against Senator Williams.

Page With Name Before Closing. The Englewood Bank was one of the smaller suburban banks in the vicinity of Kansas City. It was one of only four in and near Kansas City to which the automobile license funds were entrusted by the Secretary of State.

It was learned today that the questionable paper, and been taken out of the bank before the closing. B. M. Houchens, president of the bank, telephoned at 3 a. m., July 17, to his father-in-law, John W. Clements, an attorney of Independence, Mo., who was interested in the bank, and told him that the bank would be closed unless he could raise $25,000 by 9 a. m. to take out questionable paper. Clements put up $12,000 himself, and raised the rest of the money within the allotted time.

The questionable paper, most of it acquired through dealings with Becker's business associates, was taken up, and State Finance Commissioner French decided that the assets were not further impaired.

But rumors had gone out as to the strenuous means that had been adopted to save the bank, and a "slow run" began.

Withdrawals were continuous, and this caused the directors to decide upon the closing, which took place Saturday.

Cole Brother-in-Law of D. W. Ross. Though Houchens was president, Cole was considered the active directing influence in the bank's affairs. Cole, as has been told, was treasurer of the State Journal Publishing Co. He is a brother-in-law of Donald W. Ross, now serving two five-year terms in the penitentiary for embezzlement of funds of the Night and Day Bank of St. Louis, of which Ross was State liquidating officer.

Deposits in the Englewood Bank at the time of closing, are said to have been about $100,000. This included the automobile license funds, which are reported by Becker as about $10,000, but which are said by those familiar with the bank's affairs to have been near $25,000.

Becker has stated that interest of two percent on daily balances was paid by the banks which were depositories of the auto license funds, and that more than $12,000 thus accrued to the State last year.

The official inquiry into the closing of the Englewood Bank is expected to develop whether the bank paid interest on the license funds. The understanding here is that it did not pay such interest.

Gov. Baker, at Jefferson City today, conferred with Finance Commissioner French.

DEATH MYSTERY AT URBANA, ILL., STILL UNSOLVED

Former Police Chief Succumbs to Wounds Self-Inflicted at Inquest of Woman Found Shot.

FIERY CROSS BURNED IN FRONT OF HOME

Authorities Believe Suicide Conceals Solution of Series of Killings in College Town.

By the Associated Press. CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Aug. 9.—Police authorities of Champaign County, harassed by a growing list of violent deaths are continuing a drastic investigation into the triangular death mystery which reached a climax Friday night when J. J. "Jack" Michaels, former chief of police of Champaign, killed himself at the end of a dramatic coroner's inquest.

The investigation, is carried on through the excitement of the six murders, six suicides and two other killings by police which have kept this usually quiet university community at fever pitch since July 1. Only one suspect, of the long list of those questioned in the murder of Morgan Knox, Negro, 16 days ago, is held today by the police. He is Allan Thomas, Negro, whose new touring car, far too expensive for his means, is believed to be that in which Knox was "given a ride."

Death sealed Mystery. The other principals in the triangular deaths, Mrs. Anna Carmody and Michaels, whose partnership business dealings with Negroes won them the trust of that section of the community, are both dead. Michaels admitted at the inquest that he owed her $29,000.

Police feel, in spite of their suspicions toward Thomas, that the suicide of Michaels will conceal forever the manner of the murders of Mrs. Carmody and Knox.

At the end of the inquest into Mrs. Carmody's death, when the jury returned a verdict of "murder by person or persons unknown," Sheriff John Gray placed Michaels, who had broken down as a witness, under arrest.

Fiery Cross Burned. "Tell us what you know about the murder of Knox," demanded Constable Dwight Lyon, especially assigned to the case when the trio had reached a private room. Michaels laughed, in a high, unnatural tone.

Then Gray started to search him. Michaels laughed again, put a .25-caliber automatic pistol to his head and pulled the trigger twice. The second shot took effect.

A fiery cross was burned in the front yard of the Michaels home, three days before his death.

CONTENTS OF U. S. NOTE TO MEXICO NOT YET DIVULGED

Opinion is That It Deals With Observations on Land and Oil

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News, Copyright, 1926. MEXICO CITY, Aug. 9.—The local American Embassy is significantly silent on the contents of the note Ambassador Sheffield has addressed to the Mexican Foreign Office. It is the first he has sent in two months.

The document is understood to deal exclusively with matters pending prior to the present Catholic rumpus. The opinion is that it will be the last communication containing the United States' official observations on the land and oil regulations.

Locally no connection is seen between the Catholic dispute and the present note, the view still prevailing that whatever interests in the United States are desirous of bringing official pressure to bear on Washington on the Calles Government to settle the trouble, they will be unsuccessful. Reports here are that the American Government considers the matter purely internal and within the province of Mexico as a sovereign state to solve without outside interference.

COOLIDGE AND CALLES REPORTED IN TALK BY WIRE

The order of Minister of the Interior Tejada to the Federal Prosecutors calls for immediate seizure of all Protestant properties devoted to religious uses. They will first be inventoried and then the titles to them will be taken in the name of the Federal Government.

Catholic leaders, reiterating that they were making a common cause of religion, expressed sympathy for their Protestant brethren.

The Protestants will be asked to join with the Catholics in the economic boycott. They will also be asked to observe a Lenten-like social fast.

As resistance to the Government's decrees enters upon its second week, church leaders stress the economic boycott to force Government capitulation. Specifically they expect reduction of Government revenues to achieve this. In Government circles, however, the economic boycott is declared to be a fiasco.

President Coolidge's declarations that the conflict in Mexico should be settled by Mexicans without outside interference were displayed on the first pages of all newspapers. Government supporters are delighted with them. Catholic spokesmen have refrained from comment.

Sheffield Wants Showdown. American Ambassador Sheffield is going back to the United States tomorrow to undertake to bring President Coolidge around to his way of thinking on Mexican issues. He will at the same time make a first hand report on the church and state controversy.

Counselor Schoenfeld of the American Embassy, now in the United States, has been granted three months' leave of absence. He will at the same time make a first hand report on the church and state controversy.

Before the American protest test against the land and petroleum regulations and regulations was handed to the State Department Thursday, Sheffield submitted a draft for it to the State Department. In this he is understood to have urged that the United States could not accept the alleged retroactivity of these laws and regulations. His recommendations called for amendments that would safeguard American titles to properties acquired prior to 1917. He held also that any Americans separated from properties post-dating that year should be compensated in cash.

The American Ambassador's views, set forth by cable to Washington as well as by mail, favored a showdown on these issues. He further believed this was a time to get results.

The note as it was delivered to the foreign office is understood to have been unsatisfactory to Sheffield. This was taken as evidence of the hand of Former Ambassador Charles Becker Warren in President Coolidge's policy regarding Mexican affairs, according to opinion here, and the name of Warren is unpopular in the embassy.

Sheffield Not Optimistic. Sheffield is known to entertain little hope that the Mexican Government will amend the land and petroleum laws.

In Government quarters there is a disposition to wish Ambassador Sheffield a pleasant vacation, and if anything arises to prevent his resumption of diplomatic duties here a hospitable welcome will be accorded his successor.

Their parting handshakes with him is with the understanding that the "vaya bien"—perhaps best translated into American vernacular as "Here's your hat; must you go?"

MEXICAN BISHOPS OUTLINE OBJECTIONS TO CONSTITUTION

By the Associated Press. MEXICO CITY, Aug. 9.—Official, announcement that the Government intended to enforce the religious regulations upon Protestant churches has had little outward effect. Mexico City's two Protestant churches held the usual services yesterday and no move was made to interfere with them.

MISSING MAN FOUND DEAD; 4 ARRESTED

Assumption, Ill., Recluse Discovered in River With Skull Crushed.

By the Associated Press. TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Aug. 9.—Frank Sparr, a farm hand, his brother, William Sparr, his brother-in-law, Roy Walker, and Jack Robinson are under arrest pending inquiry into the death of Peter Rosenberg, 70-year-old recluse, whose body was found in the Kaskaskia River near Shobonier, Saturday afternoon. Rosenberg disappeared from his farm June 26. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Quick and Mrs. Quick's mother of Centralia, who were fishing west of Shobonier, discovered the body which was lying across a log on which it had caught as it floated down the river. The skull was fractured.

Shobonier is 50 miles downstream from the Rosenberg farm.

When the body of Rosenberg was shown to him, Frank Sparr said he could not identify it as that of his former employer.

Frank Sparr has been harvesting the crops for Rosenberg on the latter's farm near Assumption, Ill. When the employer disappeared, Frank Sparr was arrested charged with kidnapping him, but was released. He said he had driven Rosenberg to Decatur, whence the latter had gone on a visit to Pennsylvania. He showed a bill of sale for all of Rosenberg's farm equipment, livestock and growing crops. He declared he got $1000 from Walker, his brother-in-law, with which to buy the Rosenberg equipment, but Walker denied he had given him any money.

Walker is held as a material witness. William Sparr was to be questioned about frequent visits he received from his brother previous to Rosenberg's disappearance, since the authorities said at one time Rosenberg expressed a fear of his brother.

Dry League Head Indorses Terrell for Renomination.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 9.—One of the most bitter campaigns in Arkansas history has ended and voters will go to the polls tomorrow to choose Democratic nominees for Governor, for Congress and for various State and county offices.

Because of the gubernatorial contest between Gov. Tom J. Terral and Judge John E. Martin, the political leaders here forecast a large vote.

The prohibition question has figured largely in this campaign. The Rev. Paul E. Kemper, Superintendent of the State Anti-Saloon League, in an open letter to ministers gave his personal indorsement of Gov. Terral and asserted that the liquor question was one of the issues. Ministers who favor Martin publicly protested against Mr. Kemper's action. Gov. Terral has charged that Martin's friends to excess and has criticized his judicial actions. Martin, in return, charged that the Governor had abused his power as chief executive.

DRY ISSUE PARAMOUNT IN OHIO PRIMARY

Judge Florence Allen Has Anti-Saloon League Indorsement Against Pomerene.

By the Associated Press. COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9.—Outstanding in Ohio's primary election tomorrow is the race for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate between Miss Florence E. Allen, Judge of the State Supreme Court, and former Senator Pomerene, one of the Government prosecutors in the oil lease cases.

The Republican gubernatorial nomination, with 12 candidates, is a close competitor for public interest.

The dominant issue, though not stressed, has been prohibition, with Miss Allen receiving indorsement of the Anti-Saloon League. She has advocated outlawry of war, and favors this country's entry into the World Court and the League of Nations.

Pomerene's chief opposition, in addition to the dry organization, is that of organized labor, particularly the railroad brotherhoods, who opposed him for re-election four years ago.

In the Republican senatorial contest Senator Willis is opposed by seven candidates. The organized liberal vote of the party is expected to be thrown generally to Charles Q. Hildreth, of Wilmington, former Congressman.

Twelve candidates are seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination, but the contest generally is considered to have narrowed down to four contestants. Secretary of State Brown, Myers H. Cooper (Cincinnati), State Treasurer Day and Joseph B. Sieber of Akron.

Gov. Donahue has made no campaign for a third-term nomination on the Democratic ticket, though he has three opponents.

ALL THEORIES DISPROVED BY MISS EDERLE'S CHANNEL SWIM, SAYS HER TRAINER

If She Had Failed, T. W. Burgess Admits, Everyone Would Have Thought Him Crazy—Tells Story of Trip Across.

By THOMAS WILLIAM BURGESS, Trainer of Gertrude Ederle. (Copyright, 1926.) BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 9.—I always said that some day the English Channel would be swum by a woman, but I never expected such a marvellous performance as Gertrude Ederle's Friday. There never was and there never again will be such a swim made by anyone, anywhere, and I speak as an expert.

Miss Ederle is a wonderful girl, both physically and at heart, and I am tremendously proud of having been her trainer for her second and record-breaking attempt.

I know swimmers and I know that stretch of water well enough to say that no man living would have stood the punishment she took—and she took it smilingly.

Every Theory Disproved. Every theory of channel swimming employed in the past was proved untenable by the course we took. For the first two hours out from Cape Gris Nez the swim went as well as was possible. Then the wind freshened and I was obliged to take her off the planned course in order to give her shelter from the accompanying tug, thus taking her too far East for much hope of her making record time if she succeeded in getting across at all.

People still watching us when from the French shore must have thought I was crazy, and if she had been forced to give up I surely have been called the biggest humbug ever. But all that, owing to conditions, we had to steer away from England to the Northeast instead of Northwest as we ought to have done in theory.

By the seventh hour the north wind got much worse. We were then steering nearly East, directly toward the icy North Sea. At that time I didn't believe a crossing under such adverse weather was humanly possible, and I was only fighting for Gertrude to make a creditable performance before she had to be taken out. I confided this belief to some of the others aboard the tug.

To my astonishment at 5 o'clock she swam, in all, 31 1/2 miles.

When she had been nearly 10 hours in the water, Gertrude looked so well that, although our tug was then unable to give her any shelter owing to the gale, we had to make up for what we had lost in direction, so we steered west by south-west.

From the shore now it would seem as if I had gone stark mad and was steering back to France. But that proceeding was necessary to avoid the Goodwin Sands, also the masts of sunken wrecks which were visible from the Goodwin banks. No tug captain would dare risk taking his boat between the Goodwin Sands and the Goodwin lightship.

At 9 o'clock, 12 hours on our apparently crazy way, we ought to have steered for St. Margaret's Bay, which was practically east of us, but the water was so rough we had to steer in an altogether different direction to provide Gertrude some shelter from the seas, thus making her do two miles more swimming against the racing tide in theory. But the wind was so strong that the tide turned two hours earlier than it should have done, making it at this point not quite so bad.

In Shelter of English Shore. At 9 o'clock, entering on her fifteenth hour, with only one brief rest period to enable her to eat at noon, she was in the shelter of the English shore. We then steered straight shoreward across the tide sweep. The water there was to us comparatively calm, but in ordinary times along that coast that water would have been called very rough by everyone and anyone, no matter how well acquainted with the sea.

If Gertrude hadn't gotten through, people would have said I had done nothing wrong and that I was a fool. I did. I could have had no defense to enter except that I wanted to give her shelter from the sea. On account of our eccentric course, she was forced to buck tides when she shouldn't have needed to.

She swam, in all, 31 1/2 miles.

WOMAN, 72, STRANGLER IN BED
Found by Husband With Throat About Neck—No Sign of Robbery.
By the Associated Press.
NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 9.—Mrs. Lena Tidar, 72 years of age, was found dead in her bed today, strangled with a towel. Her husband, who slept in the same room, discovered the body when he awoke at the usual time this morning. The aged couple lived in one room in the rear of their small store. Tidar is deaf, and was stricken with paralysis two weeks ago.

Police said the murder was committed by a fiend, as no money was taken from the bedroom or the store. The only clue was a package of a popular brand of cigarettes. The intruder had gained entrance through a window from a shed.

She made, as nearly as I could count, 100,000 kicks and 25,000 arm strokes. Most of the time was making four beats to one complete stroke. When she was only two miles off the English shore she increased her pace to six beats to the two arms, and for the last 300 yards she went to eight beats to the stroke and finished up like a sprinter, fresh and just entered the water.

Crawl Stroke Is Best.
I will now admit that the crawl stroke is best for swimming the Channel. Gertie swam her wonderful crawl stroke almost continually, only changing twice for a moment at a time. Once she did a back stroke to take a peep at the French coast far behind her. I believe our starvation plan was the best treatment, as most swimmers get sea sick in such rough water, but Gertie didn't. If we had failed people would have said I was wrong to starve her, but everything, in theory, even that of continual feeding to supply body heat and strength, was proved wrong.

Gertie landed three-quarters of a mile from the point where Charles Toth of Boston touched land at Hope Point, in 1923, when he established the time of 16 hours and 46 minutes that was only seven minutes over the record of Tina Hollo-Argentinian, which Gertie shattered with her 14 hours and 43 minutes. Her time might well have been under 12 hours if we had not had to steer so jagged a route. At that, her record will probably never be beaten.

Gertie gave me the greatest day of my life, greater even than when I myself got across in 1911, and I am, as the French say, "quite content."

AID OF C. U. BECKER INDORSED MUCH OF CLOSED BANK'S PAPER

missioner French and Attorney-General Gentry regarding the Englewood Bank closing. The Governor said later that the investigation was just getting under way, and that it had not yet gone far enough to determine to what extent the State's financial interests were involved. He said there had been no formal order from the Attorney-General, thus far, for an official inquiry. However, Attorney-General Secretary Becker was questioned yesterday by the Jefferson City correspondent of the Post-Dispatch as to his reason for making the Englewood Bank, a small suburban institution, depository for license funds collected at the Kansas City branch office. There are about 20 such depositories in the State, eight of them being in St. Louis and vicinity, and four in Kansas City and vicinity.

A Personal Matter, Says Becker.
Secretary Becker was questioned yesterday by the Jefferson City correspondent of the Post-Dispatch as to his reason for making the Englewood Bank, a small suburban institution, depository for license funds collected at the Kansas City branch office. There are about 20 such depositories in the State, eight of them being in St. Louis and vicinity, and four in Kansas City and vicinity.

"I chose the bank for personal reasons," Becker said. "Some people in the bank were friends of mine." He was asked who his friends in the institution were, and replied that he could not remember the names. The questioner mentioned the names of Cole and Houchens, but Becker said it was someone else, whose name he was unable to recall.

Why did Smyth and George S. McKenney, former president of the State Journal Publishing Co., go to the Englewood Bank for loans, when the paper is in Excelsior Springs? Becker was asked. "It was a personal matter," Becker said. "The people in the bank were friends of mine."

"Did you advise them to go to the Englewood Bank for loans?" Becker was asked. "No," he said. "Did you indorse any of their notes?" "Hell, no," was the answer. Thirty-ninth Closing This Year.

The official closing of the Englewood closing, which was the thirty-ninth closing of a State bank in Missouri in 1926, may lead into the question of possible loss to the State's system of deposits.

Even if 2 per cent were received on all the auto license funds, the State would lose by the delay in getting the funds into the hands of the State Treasurer, who collects 3.21 to 3.6 per cent interest from the banks which serve as depositories of State funds in his hands.

Becker said, in reply to a question, that the license funds were seldom more than three months in reaching the Treasurer. Secretary of State Becker has been considered a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor in 1928. Ernest Wilson, a former associate of Becker, in his affidavit made during the recent senatorial primary campaign, charged that Becker was interested in the candidacy of Blodgett Priest, as well as in the candidacy of David M. Proctor, the dry candidate whom Becker supported openly.

A baby girl, about five months old, was abandoned in a waiting room of the Bethesda Maternity home, 2649 Vista avenue, yesterday morning, by a young woman who had asked permission to place the child in the institution.

The young woman, described as about 20 years old with red hair and ruddy complexion, was told by an attendant to wait until the superintendent, Mrs. Schroeder, was found. When Mrs. Schroeder arrived, the child was alone on the floor of the room.

LEONARD A. DAY NEW WATER COMMISSIONER

He Has Been Mechanical Engineer of That Division and City Employee 23 Years.

Leonard A. Day was today appointed Water Commissioner, by Director of Public Utilities Pritchard.

Day has been mechanical engineer of the water division, at a salary of $5000 a year. His salary as commissioner will be $7000. He has been in the Water Department, and in the water division of the Public Utilities Department, 23 years.

In the trial of Director E. E. Wall, on charges preferred by the Mayor, Day was a witness to statements alleged to have been made by Wall, to the effect that the Miller administration was "crooked." The trial resulted in Wall's removal.

When the Mayor began the process of removing Wall from office he said that he intended to appoint Day Director in Wall's place. However, one of the charges against Wall was that he was a hydraulic engineer rather than an electrical one, and the same appeared to apply to Day. By the time the vacancy was created the Mayor had changed his mind and promoted Pritchard from the water commissioner'ship to the office of Director.

Day is 47 years old, and is a graduate of the old Manual Training School. He also studied Mathematics and mechanics in Washington University. He was employed as machinist, draughtsman and designer for different periods of time by the American Brake Co., Commonwealth Steel Co. and American Steel Foundry, before entering the city's service. He is a member of the principal professional organizations, and has been treasurer of the Engineers' Club and chairman of the local section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He is married and lives at 4407 A Floriss place.

MUNICIPAL OPERA DRAWS 450,000 SO FAR THIS YEAR

With Two Weeks Remaining of Season This Is Only 27,000 Less Than Total for 12 Weeks in 1925.

More persons attended the first 10 weeks of this year's season of open-air performances at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park than in a similar period in any previous season. Attendance so far this year has been 450,000, it is announced by the Municipal Theater Association.

The total attendance for the 12 weeks of last season was 477,000, so that the crowds so far this year are only 27,000 short of those of all of last year. With good weather, it is estimated that the attendance for the remaining two weeks of the season will be about 100,000, making the total for this year 550,000.

Only one performance of the 70 scheduled in the first 10 weeks was abandoned altogether, one of those of "The Red Mill," in the second week. Showers of more or less intensity interrupted some other nights, but the cast was able to resume playing after delays, or the productions had progressed beyond the period of honoring rain checks.

Chilly or threatening weather had an adverse effect on the attendance during eight of the 10 weeks, theater association officials said. As usual, no statement of the receipts will be made until accounts have been completed a check at the end of the season. "Fra Diavolo," a popular light opera by Auber, will be given this week, starting tonight. It was presented at the Municipal Theater in 1921.

Next Monday the closing week's production will be Victor Herbert's "Babes in Toyland." Twenty-four St. Louis children will augment the chorus in the march of the toys. The Kupferle Memorial Chapel, named in honor of the late Mrs. Emma Kupferle of St. Louis, was dedicated yesterday at Piassa Chautauqua.

Mrs. G. V. R. Mechin of St. Louis made the presentation in behalf of the Ladies' Civic Improvement Association, and acceptance was by the Rev. F. M. Van Treese of East St. Louis. A sermon was delivered by Dr. C. D. Shumard of Alton.

Memorial services were held last night in the auditorium for the recently deceased Mrs. J. H. Mechin, a prominent business woman and sort activities, who died during the year. The memorial addresses were made by M. E. Johnson for G. V. R. Mechin, Robert P. Bringham, Walter Merriman, Anton Jacoby, George H. Steen, J. W. Newland for W. J. Haynes, Dr. Van Treese for Henrie Smith, Christiana Bernert for John P. Woods, E. E. Rudolph for Charles H. Taylor and T. W. Gregory for L. C. Maynes.

BILL TO AID GROWING OF RUBBER IN PHILIPPINES
Provides Lease in 50,000-Acre Tracts to American-Owned Firms at Nominal Rent.
By the Associated Press.
MANILA, Aug. 9.—A bill known as the rubber land act was introduced in the Lower House of the Philippine Legislature today. It provides for leasing a maximum of 45,000 acres of land to any one corporation for rubber production. The bill stipulates that 61 per cent of the stock of the leasing corporation must be owned by citizens of the United States or of the Philippines. The land may be leased for 75 years, at the end of which it reverts to the Philippine Government. The bill requires that 25 per cent of the land be planted to rubber within 15 years after the execution of the lease. After the sixth year this lease would be required to pay an annual rental of 12 cents an acre. The bill provides also that no lease shall hold more than 50,000 acres in one tract and that each tract must be at least a mile from any other tract held by the same lessee.

In his message to the Legislature, when it opened this summer, Governor-General Wood urged the adoption of some measure to facilitate rubber production.

DENIES TALE OF FINDING OF KITCHENER'S BODY

British Government Officially Contradicts Story of Burial in Scandinavia.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 9.—Official denial of the reported finding of Lord Kitchener's body on the shores of Scandinavia and its interment there is given in a report on the loss of the cruiser Hampshire of the Orkneys in 1916, issued today as a white paper.

The paper goes into the details of the sinking of the Hampshire, and, as has been officially done many times before, denies that she was lost through treachery. It has been conclusively proved, the paper says, that the vessel went down after striking one or more German mines.

"The stories that Lord Kitchener got away from the ship and that he reached shore are purely imaginary," it continues. Regarding the rumor that Kitchener's body was found on the Scandinavian shore, it says: "None of the Hampshire's dead has ever been identified and buried on those shores, and there are good reasons for regarding it as most improbable that the sea would have carried them there."

The report that the body of Lord Kitchener, famous British war minister and field marshal, had been found was published in the Referee, a London paper, Saturday. Frank Power reported to the paper that, on a recent trip to Norway, he found what he believed to be Kitchener's body in a cemetery near Stavanger, that he had it exhumed and arranged to return it to England.

Ever since the sinking of the Hampshire there have been persistent recurrences of the report that Kitchener's body had been found in another section, but Amelia did not know the address. After the fire her folks were unable to locate her.

Near Naperville, Ill., at the farm home of John, 64, and Amelia, 63, now Mrs. Amelia Law, they had a happy reunion yesterday.

SHOE THROWN AT BALL GAME
Dispute Breaks Up Contest in Sherman Park.
A dispute over an umpire's decision broke up a ball game at Sherman Park yesterday. Between the carmen of the North Broadway and De Baliviere barns. Someone hurled a spiked shoe and it hit Rudolph Stephenson, 27 years old, a conductor, of 3595 Forest Park place, fracturing his nose and cutting his lips. He was removed to St. John's Hospital.

Strangers Steal Police Dog.

KILLED UNDER AUTO ON PLEASURE JAUNT

Slain Men Brothers and Widow of One Was Wounded — Other Victim May Die.

By the Associated Press.
PRESTONSBURG, Ky., Aug. 9.—Two men were killed, another was perhaps fatally wounded and the widow of one of those killed was wounded in a pistol fight on the campus of the Prestonsburg Institute yesterday.

The dead: Beverly Mellon, 40 years old, killed instantly; Jim Mellon, 35, his brother, died of wounds at home here.

The wounded: Ben Layne, 40, perhaps fatally wounded, now in Paintsville Hospital; Mrs. Doll Mellon, widow of Jim Mellon, shot through arm.

According to reports the shooting grew out of a row over the Republican primary election Saturday, and after Beverly Mellon had been arrested by Sheriff Banks yesterday. Three others of the Mellon family, "Little" Beverly, son of the slain man, and Henry and Jim, the brothers, took him away from the officer, it was said. The Mellons then threw the officer to the ground, the elder Mellon sitting on the officer and the others beating him on the head.

Jim, the police said, drew a pistol and while shooting at the officer, killed his brother, the elder Beverly. The other brother, Henry, and "Little" Beverly, then drew pistols and in the shooting that followed Jim was shot five times and Layne was wounded. Henry was put in jail here and "Little" Beverly was released on bond.

The argument at the polls Saturday was said to have come up when a man came to vote with Beverly Mellon. In an argument over placing the ballots in the box Mellon was said to have cursed Arthur Sturgill, at the polls. He was ordered to leave. When Sturgill left the polls after they had been closed he was met and slain by Mellon. Yesterday Sturgill and Banks were walking together when they saw Mellon and the Sheriff arrested him.

METHODIST RAKES GOV. SMITH FOR KISSING THE PAPAL RING

Can't Come Within Gunshot of White House, Declares the Rt. Rev. Adna W. Leonard.

By the Associated Press.

ROUND LAKE, N. Y., Aug. 9.—

A bitter attack by Bishop Adna W. Leonard of the Methodist Episcopal Church on Gov. Smith and his chances for the presidency and on United States Senator Wadsworth marked the closing sessions here yesterday of the citizenship conference.

"No Governor can kiss the papal ring and get within gunshot of the White House," declared Bishop Leonard. "No nullification Governor ever will become the leader of a constitution-loving people."

"We must not let New York State sell her honor at the altar of gold and listen to the boasts of Senator Wadsworth. Wadsworth has violated the promise given when the Republican party put through the dry enforcement act. No Methodist, unless he values lightly the vows of the church, can remain loyal to the church and support Wadsworth."

"I believe the united church influence, together with that of patriotic societies, will defeat Wadsworth at the coming election."

CANNIBAL BACTERIA OFFERED FOR SALE IN GERMAN PAPER

Germs to Be Eaten Alive in Sugar
Tablets as Remedy for Well Known Diseases.

By Radio to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1926.
BERLIN, Aug. 9.—Cannibal bacteria now are on sale in Germany and can be bought by the general public and introduced alive into the suffering human organism, where it is claimed they will consume disease causing germs. This is the astounding news carried in an advertisement of the Deutsche Medizinische Wochenschrift.

These bacteria live wild in water, but now have been domesticated and cultivated commercially in special germ nurseries by the "German Bacterium Co., Ltd. They are prepared in special tablets with sugar of milk and sold to the general public.

These invisible friends of man are of several kinds. You can obtain "bacteriophages ch" against cholera, "ty" against typhoid and paratyphoid, "dy" against dysentery.

Naturally such cannibals are not cheap. The more savage they are the more they cost.

The Medizinische Wochenschrift
is a serious publication and accepts advertisements only for serious remedies. The scientific basis of the alleged discovery is as follows:

The Canadian Duessle discovered years ago that certain bacteria otherwise harmless to human organisms live on disease-producing germs. Therefore the Bacterium-eater company has carried out long experiments and claims to have cultivated friendly bacteria, to be able to prepare them living in tablets and offers to the suffering public collectively these remedies called bacteriophages.

back the seat lost when Langley resigned.

"I am supremely happy," Langley wired from the Atlanta penitentiary, where he is serving a two-year sentence for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. "Even these gray prison walls seem to shine with the luster of our beloved Cumberland and Blue Ridge. Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord." May He bless and keep always the good men and women and all our children of the Kentucky mountains. My love and greetings to the first Congresswon-an of the old commonwealth." Mrs.
Langley's term of office begins next March 4 and she has no opposition.

MISSING GIRL, 14, FOUND

IN APARTMENT OF MAN, 26
Melba Viers Tells of Moving to Home of Robert Drobek at His Invitation.

Police seeking Melba Viers, 14 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Viers, of 4262 A St. Louis avenue, who disappeared from home Wednesday, found her Saturday night in the apartment of Robert Drobek, 26, at 2907 Geyer avenue. Drobek was arrested. His children, Robert, 8, and Don L., 2, were there in charge of a maid.

The Viers girl said she had been at the apartment at Drobek's invitation since Wednesday. Drobek admitted she had "moved in." He had rented the apartment under the name of Joseph Hager on Aug. 1.

Drobek formerly was owner, publisher and editor of the Eldorado News at Eldorado, Ill., but quit business there, he said, when libel suits became more plentiful than advertising. His wife having left him, he came to St. Louis last June, leaving his children in the care of his friend, the Chief of Police at Eldorado, later sending for them. He stayed for one week here at Hotel Jefferson and departed without paying a $40 bill.

The Viers family used to live at Eldorado, and, according to Drobek, the girl was a frequent visitor at the Drobek home. When Drobek came to St. Louis he communicated with her and she resumed her visits, he said.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Leland Stanford University of Palo Alto, Cal., and the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, have been awarded grants totaling $600,000 by the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics.

At Stanford it is planned to establish an experimental laboratory of aerodynamics and aeronautic engineering and to extend the nautical course to six years with the support of the income from $300,000 provided in the award. Experimental researches which have been carried on for 10 years are planned to be enlarged to embrace many phases of air conditions and structural design and construction of aircraft. A few fellowships are expected to be made.

The gift will be used as a basis for the establishment of a graduate school of aeronautics. It was announced it will also provide for the extension of aeronautic courses, the perfection of the stagger-bee-lace-tailless airplane recently developed at the institute of research fellowships, and a new school for the building and testing of models of full sized gliders and power planes.

A school of aeronautics at New York University was established by the Guggenheim fund last year.

Spectator Killed at Race.

By the Associated Press.
MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., Aug. 9.—George Ames, 12 years old, was killed here yesterday when a racing automobile driven by Carl Osborne, crashed through a rail at a Fairgrounds track and three other persons were injured, one probably when an ambulance which was removing the body was struck by a second racer. The ambulance had crossed the track to an infield for the body and the driver in attempting to recross the oval sent the machine into the path of race car being driven by Noble Prudential of Detroit. Prudential was probably fatally injured and two persons riding in the machine were seriously hurt.

Dry Agents Mistaken for Robbers.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 9.—A score of women fainting, clothing was torn and two persons were trampled in a rush for the exits of the Larkine Cafe last night when prohibition agents who raided the place were mistaken for hold-up men. The cafe, on the Boardwalk, was filled with after-theater crowds when, according to employees, five Federal prohibition agents appeared in the doorway, revolvers in hand. Some one shouted "hold up" and panic ensued. After the crowd had been quieted the agents confiscated a quantity of alleged liquor and arrested three bartenders.

SHERIFF AND DRY LAW AGENT

KILL EACH OTHER IN FIGHT
County Official in Virginia Shoots
One-Armed Man, Who Returns Fire.

By the Associated Press.
CLINTWOOD, Va., Aug. 9.—A Sheriff and a State prohibition agent are dead here as the result of a revolver fight on the steps of the Dickinson County Courthouse, which came as the climax of a five-year disagreement over a land deal that had been fanned anew by an argument over the recent Virginia primary.

C. Pridemore Fleming, Dickenson Sheriff, died soon after the shooting with a bullet near his heart. James S. Mullins, the dry agent, succumbed last night from three wounds.

A group of villagers, gathered on the courthouse steps for their usual evening talk yesterday, were ordered away by the Sheriff. All but Mullins obeyed, and witnesses said the Sheriff opened fire on the agent, who had only one arm. Mullins retreated up the steps, endeavoring to draw his revolver. He sought protection behind a stone column, but was struck in the abdomen, arm and face. Fleming turned and walked away, and witnesses said that then Mullins fired the shot which struck the Sheriff.
He fell unconscious and died 30 minutes later.

Fleming was 50 years old and serving his second term as Sheriff.
He also conducted the Fleming Hotel. His widow and three children survive. Mullins was 45 and had been connected with the State prohibition force for five years. His widow and eight children survive him.

scientist and educator and known for his hunting experience with a bow and arrow, is dead here.

Although a surgeon and scientist of note, Dr. Pope is perhaps most widely known as a hunter. His recent hunting expedition into the jungles of Africa, where, in company with Stewart Edward White, the author, he shot and killed lions with a bow and arrow, brought him considerable fame in this country.

Baron Royce-Garrett Released.
By the Associated Press.
MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 9.—Baron Michael Royce-Garrett was released yesterday from a hospital where he has been held under guard by county officials since the inquest into the death of his wife who jumped to her death from the tower of the Everglades Hotel July 31. County officials relinquished him when members of the Cereal Grainers Theosophical Society promised that he would leave the state.

PARADE TO OPEN THE ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION

Exhibitors Discuss Plans for Procession Representing Industrial Panorama.

Exhibitors for the Greater St. Louis Exposition in Forest Park Sept. 4-19—some 400 of them—discussed at luncheon in Hotel Stadler today how to make their features of the Exposition most attractive and to begin plans for an opening day parade, presenting an industrial panorama of St. Louis. There is provision for 400 exhibit booths in the exposition. Some exhibitors have taken as many as six booths. Nationally advertised products likely will be presented in elaborate displays constructed elsewhere and shipped to St. Louis. Virtually all the large railroads entering St. Louis have taken booths and are preparing extensive displays. The St. Louis Car Co., whose street cars go to cities throughout the United States, is constructing a miniature street railway. A grain milling company is building a small mill plant in which wheat will be converted to flour in the complete process that takes place in a commercial plant. A coal company will display a model coal mine.

NEW JERSEY HUNTS IN VAIN FOR ESCAPED LEOPARD

No One Has Actually Seen the Beast Since It Broke Out of Twin Brook Zoo Last Thursday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Four days of wild rumors, of fruitless and wearying search through thicket and wood and of jokes about the leopard's changing his spots raised New Jersey's big game hunt to the boiling point yesterday. At the headquarters of the Twin Brook Zoo, near Middletown, N. J., from which a full-grown Indian leopard escaped last Thursday, four telephone calls came during the day from persons who had heard that someone thought he had seen the beast. Authorities investigated the rumors and found them unfounded.

Scores of amateurs who joined the hunt in the course of the day carrying resurrected rifles, shotguns, pistols, knives and every other conceivable weapon were bitterly disappointed.

As a matter of fact, the leopard has not been positively seen or heard since its escape. Friday afternoon the official posse appeared to be close to success. On this occasion, being arrayed before a thicket on the Harry Payne Whitney horse farm near Lynbrook, having heard what seemed the genuine cry of the beast coming from the thicket, the hunters went into conference and decided to go back after dark.

They departed without entering the thicket and when they returned that night they found nothing wilder there than a yellow dog.

SUES AFTER CHARGE OF FAKING Cancer Institute Charges Medical Paper With Conspiracy.

By the Associated Press.
ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 9.—Alleging that "not a solitary charge against the Hoxie Cancer Institute has been proved," attorneys today began a $250,000 damage suit in the Circuit Court here charging Dr. Morris Fishbein of Chicago, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, the Breeze Printing Co. and Frank Reed, its editor, with conspiracy to ruin the institute. John E. Hogan of Taylorville and George B. Gillespie of Springfield, are attorneys for the plaintiff.

The petition alleges that the American Medical Association, without investigation, condemned the Hoxie method of treating cancer as a "fake," and that its condemnation was published here before it appeared in the Journal. The intended establishment of branch sanitariums in Denver, San Francisco and Florida has been prevented by this publication, the petition says, and the parent hospital here and its branch at Rochester, N. Y., have been subjected to repeated odious references.

The Hoxie company has sued the American Medical Association for half a million dollars.

PAIR DROWN AS CANOE TIPS

Kansas City Boy Dies in Attempt to Save Young Woman.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 9.—Cooper L. Gold, 17 years old, and Miss Doris Feaster, 20, of Clinton, Mo., a student at the University of Missouri, were drowned in Winwood Lake yesterday.

Gold tried to save Miss Feaster when their canoe upset. He became entangled in moss below the surface and sank after reaching the spot where she went down.

Miss Mary Sands, 19, a cousin of Miss Feaster, a third occupant of the canoe, was rescued.

Speaker Keeps Date by Plane. Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 9.—When his train was derailed near St. Louis and threatened to force him to cancel his engagement to speak yesterday at the opening session of the semiannual meeting of the Mid-West Newspaper Association here, Emerson B. Knight of Indianapolis chartered an airplane. Leaving St. Louis shortly before noon he arrived here in time to address the association at 3 p. m.

Atlantic City Sick
Man Gained 28
Lbs. With McCoy's
TELLS HIS OWN STORY

Dear Sirs: "It may be possible that there are men and women who are suffering as I did. I was the most miserable creature walking this earth—sick, nervous, always afraid I was going to faint. I could not ride on a train or trolley, or get in a crowd in a subway, store basement or moving picture.
"I doctored and got relief, but the same trouble came back. I learned about McCoy's COD LIVER OIL COMPOUND TABLETS and finally bought a box at one of the drug stores in Atlantic City—then I got cured. I finished by taking 5 boxes of tablets, and I am going to tell you and the public that I am a new man. I eat anything and everything, I am healthy, strong, and am gaining weight. 175 lbs. to my old weight. 147 lbs. Sleep, rest, eat and nothing bothers me. I feel fine. I feel like a new man.
Thanks to you." Stanley E. Howe, 1733
Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic City, N. J.
Full of vitamins and a combination of cod liver oil and health builders, McCoy's is sold by all drug stores and druggists everywhere—60 tablets 60 cents, and remember if you are not completely satisfied you will get your money back. Ask

TRIES TWICE TO KILL SELF.
HE LOST $10,000 GAMBLING
Jacob Greenberg Hauled "Fish" to Resorts, Then "Swallowed Hook, Line and Sinkers" Himself.
Jacob Greenberg, 36 years old,
of 3503 North Twenty-fifth street who took poison, then tried to drown himself in two feet of water last night, said today at City Hospital that he was despondent because, after taking "fish" to gambling houses for two years, he, himself, had "swallowed hook, line and sinker."
He related that two years ago
he quit a newspaper delivery route with $10,000 and became a service car driver receiving $12 a day from gambling house keepers near St. Louis, on both sides of the Mississippi. In trying to white away the long waits at these resorts, he said, he had gambled away the $10,000.
Greenberg is expected to be discharged from the hospital tomorrow. He was taken to the hospital by two cab drivers who found him wandering near the lake in Fairground Park.

$15,000 TAKEN IN EXPRESS OFFICE HOLDUP AT MATTOON
Seven Robbers Bind Five Clerks,
Escape With Southern Illinois
Railroad Ticket Receipts.
By the Associated Press.
MATTOON, Ill., Aug. 9.—Loot estimated at between $15,000 and $40,000 was obtained from the American Railway Express office here early yesterday by seven gunmen who seized two railroad shipments within an hour of train time.
The robbers entered the office while clerks were preparing the shipments for two late trains, trussed the five employees and a man who happened in, and escaped. They were believed to have fled in two automobiles.
Officials are unable accurately to determine the value of the consignments, which were largely Saturday's ticket sale receipts in railroad stations to the south and west of Mattoon in Illinois.
Two hats, one a straw and one felt, one from a store in Chicago and one from a store in Champaign and two handkerchiefs bearing the initial "W" used as gags, were left by the robbers. These were the only clues in possession of the police.

PART TWO.

How Dry Are the Colorado Law Enforcers? Utter Indifference Presages Its

Police Chief of Denver, City of... Has 10 Men for Anti-Liquor... Attorney Says Women... Refuse to Convict Suspects

THIS is the third article of a series dealing with prohibition in the so-called dry States in the North and Middle West. It deals with conditions in Colorado. Other States will be discussed in articles to follow.

(Copyright, 1926.)

DENVER, Aug. 9.—The stranger entering Colorado who has not been informed that he is in the driest of dry communities should be told that Colorado is a State of the most extreme prohibition. It is a distinction that Coloradans confer upon those whom they would greet with especial cordiality, for it is their way of enhancing in the eyes of their guests the value of the potent beverage which they are about to offer them.

As a pilgrim in search of facts the writer discovered soon enough that dryness in Colorado is a sort of fetish, a habit of talking that bears little relation to the reality. This much has been confessed by those high in the State whose business it is to know what is going on in this respect. Colorado is dripping wet, in fact. There is plenty of drinking by high and low, in town and country, in home and back room, in office and hotel.

Indeed besides its Pike's Peak and gorgeous Rocky Mountain parks, the State can claim fame for objects of interest of quite a different order.

Leadville Has New Fame. There, for instance, is Leadville, truly one of the show places in the West, a town that for sheer indifference to every form of liquor regulation should take all laurels. Except Homestead, Pa., the East has nothing to compare with it. And then there is Colorado Mountain Dew, a moonshine indigenous to this territory, the excellence of which is apparently known to every resident in the State. By virtue of this concoction, the dry pioneers of Colorado can now take their place with that group of revered innovators of the Eastern coast—the Virginians who made the mint julep famous in the seventeenth century, the Dutch of New York, who refreshed themselves with Holland gin, and the Puritans, who took blackberry wine "for their stomachs' sake."

Not so long ago the people here sought to make a test of their temperance on the liquor question through one of their professional dry organs, and were greatly surprised to learn that, while their palaver and reputation has been of drought, they have actually been wet by quite a decided margin, with the women very much in the vanguard.

Long Struggle With Liquor. Colorado has had a varied and lengthy experience with the liquor issue. Her first struggle with the problem dating back for more than 25 years. She has had fluctuation between moisture and aridity all the way up to 1914 when she went bone dry by popular vote.

At one time the people in the State were given an opportunity to obtain what liquors they desired simply by declaring under oath before a clerk of court that they required spirits for their health. No other certification was asked of them.

Out of the population of 900,000 approximately 150,000 took the oath and were permitted to order from outside the State and have shipped to them a maximum of two quarts of whisky, six quarts of wine or 24 quarts of beer each month.

There are those who assert that the Coloradans were very happy then, and that it was about this time that its reputation for satisfied dryness began to be spread about. It became the front porch and back yard of the drought movement of the nation. Time brought changes in the law, and today Colorado, the classic home ground of the drys, is brimming with moonshine and overrun with bootleggers.

No Terrors in Draconic Laws. The boast that Colorado's statutes exceed in severity those of any State in the country has few terrors for the rum-runner. Despite the fact that the State has fortified its dry laws to the extent that it is a crime even to possess an apparatus that may be used for the brewing of illicit liquors, everybody knows that there are no State agents to enforce these laws. The whole State enforcement department was abolished by Gov. Morley six months ago.

An enthusiastic and efficient District Attorney with dry propensities and the confidence of his community employed special investigators and bent every effort for a year to drain the faucet of a few of the less difficult counties over which he had jurisdiction, but finally threw up his hands, confessing that he was no further than a year before.

2 U. S. MISSIONARIES DROWN AFTER RESCUING FOUR GIRLS

Caught by Undercurrent at Alexandria, Egypt, in Swimming to Save Fifth Bather.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The Rev. R. G. McGill and the Rev. J. W. Baird of the United States Presbyterian Mission, were drowned Saturday at Alexandria, Egypt, after they had rescued four girls who were in difficulties, while bathing, and had gone to the rescue of a woman in distress, according to dispatches.

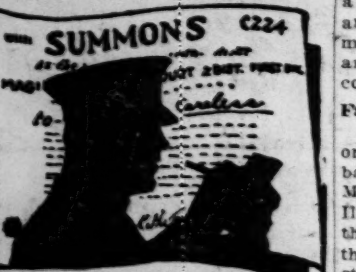

The missionaries had towed the four girls ashore when they saw a woman in distress, due to the waves. They went to her aid, but both were caught by the undercurrent. The woman was saved. The bodies of the missionaries were washed ashore and they were buried today.

MAFALDA'S SON IS BAPTIZED

Named Maurice Frederick Charles Emmanuel Umberto.

RACONIGLI, Italy, Aug. 9.—The infant son of Princess Mafalda, second daughter of the Italian sovereigns and wife of Prince Philip of Hesse, was baptized today with the name Maurice Frederick Charles Emmanuel Umberto. The ceremony, which was private, was held in the room of the ancient castle where Mafalda and Philip were married, and in the presence of the King and Queen and members of the court. Don Giovanni Bergoglio, the royal chaplain, officiated, assisted by two prelates. Princess Giovanna, third daughter of the royal house, acted as godmother and crown Prince Humbert as godfather. Prior to the ceremony, Prince Philip, the father, accompanied by the royal physician, Dr. Giovanni Quirico, went to the municipal offices and made the necessary declaration of birth.

KING SAVES WEAPONS MEANT TO KILL HIM

Alfonso Makes Collection of Relics of Assassins Who Attacked Him.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—One of the hobbies of the King of Spain is collecting weapons, bombs and other relics of the many attempts which have been made to assassinate him.

King Alfonso, accompanied by the Queen, arrived in London from Paris almost simultaneously with discovery by the French police of a plot to take his life. He became much interested in the reports that his enemies had a new kind of revolver and immediately started inquiries to ascertain just what kind it was. The King himself is somewhat of a shot and is keen on keeping pace with the times in this respect.

The courage and calmness of the King have long attracted attention. When a bomb was thrown at his carriage on his first visit to Paris, the King remarked: "I have received a baptism of fire without going to war."

BATSMAN'S SKULL POSSIBLY FRACTURED BY PITCHED BALL

John Barking Jr. Injured in Amateur Game on East St. Louis Playground.

John Barking Jr., 20 years old, of 1416 Buchanan street, suffered possible skull fracture when hit by a pitched ball when at bat in an amateur game on the East St. Louis municipal diamond at Eighth-third and State streets. He is at Deaconess Hospital, East St. Louis.

Fan's Jaw Fractured by Foul Ball. Fred Huebner, 9 years old, was one of the spectators at the baseball game between Staunton and Mount Olive teams at Mount Olive, Ill., yesterday afternoon. One of the batters hit a foul drive near the third-base line and the ball struck Huebner's jaw. The boy rubbed the sore spot and continued his ardent rooting. His face began to swell, however, and he reluctantly left the baseball diamond and sought a physician's office. The jaw had been fractured.

SMILEY AGAIN REFUSES TO SIGN DEPUTIES' VOUCHERS

Counsel for Sheriff Pleads in Vain for 20 Men, Not Paid Since July 1.

While the 20 Deputy Sheriffs of St. Louis County, who have not been paid since July 1, continued at their duties today, former State Senator A. E. L. Gardner, as counsel for Sheriff Wilmas, appeared before the St. Louis County Court in a vain attempt to persuade Presiding Judge Smiley to change his mind and sign the pay vouchers.

Gardner suggested that a citizen file application for a writ of prohibition in the Missouri Supreme Court so that the deputies might be paid while legality of the act which created their offices is tested. Smiley refused unconditionally to sign the vouchers. Apparently the deputies must wait while Gardner seeks a writ of mandamus to force payment.

Smiley bases his refusal on the fact that the act of 1923 authorizing the Sheriff to appoint 20 deputies was worded almost in the phraseology of the Ralph sewer bill which the Supreme Court recently held unconstitutional.

FILIPINO BANDITS KILL 13 IN PLUNDERING LUZON TOWN

Constabulary Pursuing Raiders Who Have Fled Into the Mountains.

MANILA, Aug. 9.—An official constabulary report today from Cagayan, Cagayan province, northern Luzon, says thirteen natives there were murdered by robbers who looted the village, taking money, jewels and clothing. The robbers fled to the mountains with a constabulary patrol in pursuit.

COLORADO LAW ENFORCERS ADMIT PROHIBITION FAILS

for there indeed they are wide open.

In Leadville, for example, harboring 6000 residents, Colorado can point to a place that stands in a niche by itself, a town where prohibition is assuredly a lost cause and where John Barleycorn, it seems, has fled to spend his troublous Volstead days unabashed.

Typical Pre-Volstead Barroom.

Standing in front of the Hotel Vendome, on Main street, and casting a stone in any direction one could be sure of hitting a spot where the only question asked is

"Scotch or rye?" Once inside a picture of the Bowery in its palmiest days greets the eye. There is the polished bar, the brass rail, the clank of the silver dollar on the bar top, the tinny piano strumming out the favorite old tunes of yesteryear, back room with its eternal moist tables, the singing and dancing women.

It is the place where certain councilmen of the town drop in occasionally to have a bracer with neighbors. It's the town where the mayor, solicited lest the populace take these resorts too much to heart, advised his charges in proclamation that they should not tarry there after midnight.

The picture, however, would not be complete without a look-in upon Telluride and Trinidad, and Ridgway, and Walsenburg, and Pueblo, and Alamosa, and Fort Garland and Placer, in all of which settlements they seem to be disputing with Leadville for the highest wide-open honors, and where statutory prohibition is meaningless.

Twelve Stills in 12 Homes.

At the other end of the State stands Serene, a modest, quiet little hamlet of 150 inhabitants, typical of the hundreds of others such spots that may be found throughout the State. A group of Federal agents looked into 12 of their homes and found 12 stills. They went no further.

It remains for Joel E. Stone, District Attorney, with jurisdiction over the five immense counties encircling Denver, to relate his experiences in a sincere, whole-hearted effort to enforce the prohibition law in his bailiwick.

"The prohibition law trembles in the balance in Colorado," he said. "Not a failure, but very close to it. The alarming increase in bootlegging in this State is frightening enforcement officers everywhere. The universal indifference of citizens toward the prohibition law, unless brought up abruptly, result in the eventual collapse of prohibition."

The arrested bootleggers in his district, comprised of Adams, Arapahoe, Jefferson, Gilpin and Clear Creek Counties, he said, equaled one-half of one per cent of the district's population.

"The very fact that we caught one-half of one per cent of the population in the district," he asserted, "for violation of the prohibition law, indicates that bootlegging is rapidly increasing, for we are without enforcement officers and sufficient funds, and it is only reasonable to believe that we caught only a small portion of those actually violating the Volstead act."

Waging a Losing Fight.

Referring to the fact that out of 201 cases he filed in this district dealing with liquor offenses, 183 convictions were had, he said: "It indicates a relentless earnest effort to enforce the law, but in spite of that I have to admit that we are waging a losing fight. I put the blame for the defeat squarely upon the people—they are indifferent. Apparently they do not want the bootlegger punished."

"The bootleggers are engaging women to run the stills for them now. A sweet-faced woman, a bald-faced lie, a sympathetic jury and acquittal is the answer. I find that citizens will report any other sort of crime, but bootlegging, no. I am forced to admit that I am the First District, and the entire State is the largest single market for illicit liquor traffic, not most of the State, but the entire State. There is a movement in Colorado to repeal the law. State liquor laws form with the Federal it is a referendum, the repeal of the law to come before the people on the 11th of November.

pected to arrive in St. Louis this evening from Green Bay, Wis., where he died in a hospital yesterday. He had been acutely ill for only a few days, but had been in poor health for several years.
He was 61 years old.

Mr. Elliot, who lived at 5023
Westminster place, had been connected with the frog and switch company throughout his business life. The company was founded by his father, Henry Elliot. William H. Elliot was president of the company up to January, 1925, when its holdings, the East St. Louis plant and a plant in Pueblo, Colo., were sold to the Ramapo Ajax Corporation of New York. Mr. Elliot thereupon became a director of the Ramapo and remained in charge of the East St. Louis plant.

He went to his summer home in Fish Creek, Wis., about three weeks ago, accompanied by Mrs. Elliot and their daughter, Mrs. Walter Fischel of 14 Lenox place. He was removed to the hospital in Green Bay last week.

Mr. Elliot was a native of Nashville, Tenn., but was educated in St. Louis and Kemper Military Academy at Booneville. In 1889 he married Miss Blanche Wilkerson.

churches and estimates made of the Catholic and Jewish faiths.

The 25 boards connected with the stewardship council of the Federal Council of Churches gave $88,845,- 000 to benevolences, including missions of all kinds; $332,552,000 to congregational expenses, and miscellaneous gifts to make a total of $451,000,000. Dr. Lovejoy estimat-

Roman Catholics $168,000,00 and

Many Deaths Traced to Alcohol.

By the Associated Press.
BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 9.—One-third of the 116 deaths attributed to heart disease and the same proportion of 49 laid to apoplexy during July in this city were traceable directly or indirectly to alcohol, according to Health Commissioner Fronczak. He expressed the opinion that physicians failed to give the real causes of death in many instances to protect the names of families of the dead. Of the 29 deaths admittedly due to alcoholism during the month, 14 were caused by wood alcohol poisoning.

"Mercantile Service"

Banking Bond Corporation Corporation Finance Real Estate Loan Real Estate Public Relations Safe Deposit Savings Trust

Reasons for Using
"Mercantile Service"GOOD SERVICE

SERVICE is an overworked word, but the thing the word stands for can never be overdone. Good service is an overworked claim, and must be proved. Service makes an institution grow. Growth proves service
... then, constant growth proves good service. Mercantile growth has been constant, proving good service—and that is a good reason for using "Mercantile Service."

100,000
CUSTOMERS

THE institution with 100,000 customers has passed a practical service test, and by retaining those patrons it earns a mass recommendation that cannot be ignored.
Think of the equipment, the experience, the responsibility such an institution must have.
Think of the questions it must answer.
Think of the peaks of service it must meet.
There is no question about it—100,000 customers is a good reason for using "Mercantile Service."

LOCATION

THE square bounded by Fourth Street,
Twelfth Street, Market Street and Franklin Avenue is the retail and shopping center, the "downtown district" of St. Louis. The Mercantile Trust Company is in the exact center of that square, and therefore Convenient Location is a good reason for using "Mercantile Service."

CAPITAL AND SURPLUS
$10,000,000

CAPITAL and SURPLUS means strength and safety in banking, and in banking there are no substitutes for strength and safety. Good service, convenient location, ten departments, 100,000 customers, all are good reasons for using "Mercantile Service," but capital and surplus $10,000,000—strength and safety
—is the best reason.

TEN DEPARTMENTS

INSTEAD of having an account at one bank, investing at another and renting a Safe Deposit box at another, Mercantile patrons may have an account on the main floor, invest on the same floor or on the balcony, and keep their valuables downstairs. Any other financial service can be found under the same roof. As the trite saying that time is money becomes more truthful every day,
"Every Financial Service" becomes a better reason for using "Mercantile Service."

THERE are many general reasons for using "Mercantile Service," such as the wisdom of regular saving, the necessity of keeping valuables in a safe deposit box, the safety of a corporate executor, etc., but the reasons here set forth are not general—they are specific. They apply definitely to "Mercantile Service." They have helped us develop this service to its present efficiency and volume, and they are good reasons why you should accept this invitation—

Having created "Mercantile Service" for the benefit of all concerned, we invite you to use it for the betterment of your financial condition.

Models of Four Famous Diamonds to Be Displayed at Missouri State Fair

Histories of Originals of Gems Owned by Mining School Abounded in Tales of Blood and Misfortune.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ROLLA, Mo., Aug. 9.—Exact models of four famous diamonds of history will be exhibited at the Missouri State fair at Sedalia this year by the School of Mines and Metallurgy. The four to be displayed are the Kohinoor, the Orloff, the Regent and the Grand Duc de Toscane.

The Kohinoor diamond is undoubtedly the most famous diamond of all history. The stories surrounding this famous gem reek with blood, ill omen and disaster up until the time it came into the possession of the British crown. Many of the stories are recorded in history and many are no doubt legends. Enlightened opinion today attributes the ill omen and disaster, not always to the stone itself, but to the fact that Indian rulers, during the time this history was being made, were assassinated or dethroned very frequently, whether they possessed a Kohinoor or not.

About 1500 years B. C. so the story goes, India was deluged in blood by the struggles of two rival dynasties who fought for supremacy. The very gods themselves, it was alleged, fought on one side or the other, and the fortunes of war wavered from side to side for several generations. It also was claimed that one of the heroes of the strife, named Karna, possessed a stone of brilliant luster, which was given to him by one of the superior gods on his side as a pledge of his protection. Unfortunately, Karna lost the favor of the god by some misdeed and was killed in battle by the chief warrior on the other side, who, according to the custom of the time, forthwith despoiled his victim of his armor and paraphernalia and thus came into possession of the great Kohinoor diamond.

Kohinoor Has Bloody History.
From that time until A. D. 1344, the diamond was in the possession of Ala-ud-din, the most powerful pre-Mogul Muslim Emperor of Delhi, subdued the Raja of Malwa in his conquest of India, and wrested the Kohinoor from his possession. The new possessor was assassinated by his favorite general whom he had released from slavery, and from that time on, the owner of the great diamond seemed destined to an untimely end, though great battles were fought for its possession. Throughout its history runs a peculiar twist of Indian psychology. They refused to rob the owner of the jewel by force, which they easily might have done, but they did not hesitate to subject his person to every form of indignity, or to resort to every trick their crafty minds could devise, to secure possession of the gem.

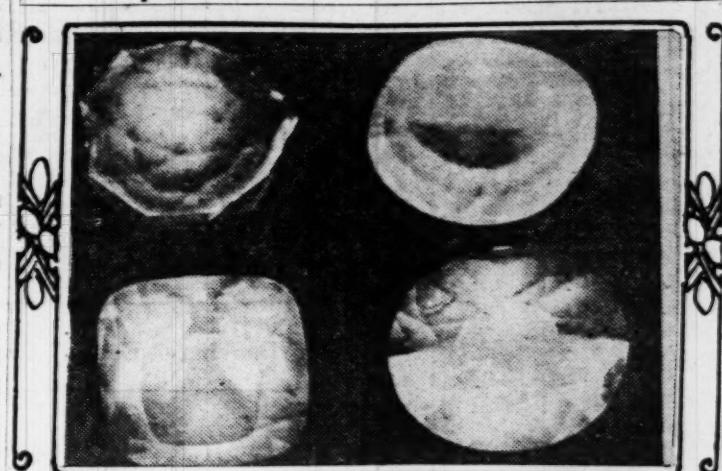

Nadir, the ruler of Persia, had heard of the wealth of India. He had heard of the peacock throne of Delhi and of the Kohinoor, the priceless gem of the then feeble Emperor. He went, ostensibly as a visitor, but came back a conqueror, and with him came the peacock throne and the Kohinoor. But he wouldn't rob his conquered host of the gem. There was some difficulty in getting it. It was so valuable, being estimated at "half the daily expense of the entire world," that the Delhi Emperor wore it on his person, in this case on his turban.

Changes Hands Through Ruse.
Nadir suggested a final meeting outside the walls of Delhi for their parting. Mid scenes of great splendor, the two sovereigns met between their armies, embraced as brothers, and swore eternal friendship. Then, as a pledge of their love, Nadir Shah proposed an exchange of turbans. With a feigned attitude, the impotent emperor of Delhi relinquished his turban, and with it the great gem.

Nadir Shah was assassinated by his own soldiers, and his grandson who received the gem with the crown, was dethroned and restored at the price of the stone by Ahmed Shah, an independent ruler of Afghanistan. It changed hands here without violence, going by descent to his grandson, Shah Zamaun. Shah Zamaun was defeated in battle by his brother, Mohammed Shah, and fled for his life with the Kohinoor. He was captured, through a trick, and while being held a prisoner, after repeated refusals to surrender the diamond, since the code of the Indians forbade robbery, he finally, on hearing that he was to be taken to Mohammed Shah, contrived to secret the gem between two stones in his prison wall. On hearing that his brother did not have the gem with him, Mohammed Shah sent his surgeon to put out Shah Zamaun's eyes. The surgeon unceremoniously threw Shah Zamaun upon the ground and pierced both his eyeballs with a lance. But Shah Zamaun guarded his secret, and not until he was released by his third brother, Shah Shujah, who successfully rebelled against Mohammed, did the great stone again come to light. Then it appeared in the possession of Shah Shujah.

Owner Imprisoned and Tortured.
Shah Shujah's fate was more pitiless than had been that of the previous owners of the ill-fated gem. Driven from his throne by a rebellion, he roamed the country as an outcast, accompanied by his faithful queen and a small band of followers, and the Kohinoor. At last he appeared to have found refuge at Srinugger, but the ruler of that country rather un hospitably thrust him into prison, until he would surrender to him the diamond. He would not rob him of it by violence, and his ideas of etiquette frustrated his ambitions. Rangit Singh, the Sikh ruler of Punjab, descended upon the ruler of Cashmere at Srinugger and released Shah Shujah, offering him an asylum at Lahore. There, as a guest of Rangit, he, whether in an endeavor to prove to his royal host that he was still of some importance though dethroned, or whether in childish vanity, displayed the gem to the ruler. Shujah promptly was made a prisoner, but Oriental customs and beliefs would not permit Rangit to rob his person. Instead, he subjected him to every form of indignity he could devise, even denying him the necessities of life, but Shujah clung to his precious diamond. At last, Rangit offered to lead into Af-

Two Tubs—One Washes while the other Dries

THE new Easy Washer has two tubs but no wringer. A small drying tub dries one full batch of clothes while the Easy's large tub washes another batch. Each tub holds eight double sheets or the equal in other clothes, and with this exclusive double-capacity arrangement your entire washing is done in a very short time.

Buttons simply can't come off in the Easy's marvelous new dryer. There is nothing to wear or tear the clothes. Linens come out unwrinkled. If the day be rainy, so that it is impossible to sun the clothes, many women say the dryer a little longer and the clothes are ready for ironing.

The new Easy has a wonderful new water-circulating system which handles all the water. This system makes thick soapy suds in forty seconds; it recovers the suds from the clothes and returns them to the wash tub; it sends the rinse and the blue waters from the dryer back to the wash and bluing tubs; it empties the washer when you are all through.

MODELS OF FOUR FAMOUS DIAMONDS TO BE SHOWN AT FAIR

and place Shah Shujah on the throne of Kabul, in return for the gem. Shujah yielded up the famous diamond, but reserved the transfer of absolute ownership until he was upon the throne of Kabul. Shujah remained a prisoner but finally escaped into British territory.

For the first time the great stone came into contact with British interests and, after some years and more misfortunes to its owner, it went into the possession of the East India Company, evidently through right of conquest, and was by them presented to Queen Victoria in 1850. It is now a part of the British crown jewels. When brought to England it weighed 181 carats, but was recut and now weighs 106 carats. The model to be displayed at the fair is after the second cutting.

Irishman Stole the Orloff.
The Orloff also has many interesting stories in connection with it. A drunken Irishman, so the story goes, boasted in a London tavern that he would accomplish three feats which no European had hitherto accomplished. First, he would see the Great Mogul on his throne; second, he would ride bareback on an elephant, an animal unseen in Europe since the days of Hannibal; and third, he would hold in his hand the largest diamond in the world. The story does not relate the accomplishment of the first two feats, but as to the third, he entered a Hindu shrine in which a Brahmin god was housed. The eye of the god was a great diamond. He stole it and finally escaped to Russia with it. There he sold it to Count Orloff for 190,000, and the Count presented it to Catherine II. Thus it became a part of the Russian crown jewels. It was recut into the form of a rose and now weighs 194½ carats.

Some stories say that the Kohinoor and the Orloff were once part of the same stone, known as the Great Mogul and weighing, before cut, 787 carats, and that it was cut in two that a portion of it might be offered up to the idol in the hope of breaking the evil spell that seemed to accompany the great gem.

The Regent and the Grand Duke de Tuscany have similar histories. While these four great stones are not surpassed in historical background, they have within recent years been surpassed in size by two stones from the famous Kimberly district of South Africa. The Excelsior diamond, weighing 971 carats before cut, was found in the Jagersfontein mine in 1869. It was cut into two stones, one of 485 carats and the other of 486 carats. The great stone was picked up by a Negro, engaged in loading a truck with diamond dirt. In spite of the white overseer, the Negro secreted it about his person for some time. He evidently did not intend to steal it, as he explained his actions later, when he voluntarily produced it, by saying he wanted to be the first to "give it to the boss." After 12 years of waiting in vain for some rich Indian nabob or an American millionaire to come forward with the tremendous price, the great stone was sold to the government of South Africa for 50,000 pounds. It was cut into a number of smaller stones and thus disposed of.

Cullinan's Greatest Stone.
The greatest stone of all, the Cullinan, was found in the Premier mine in the Transvaal Colony, South Africa, in 1905. The manager, at the close of the shift, was making a round of the mine. Far up the embankment his eye caught sight of a large glittering object. He climbed up and found a great crystal protruding from the solid earth. His fingers were not strong enough to dislodge it. He tried with his jackknife and broke the blade. Strange thoughts began to course through his mind. Had he been the subject of a trick? He would test it there, before taking the matter too seriously. A simple test convinced him the great stone was a diamond.

Then, strangely enough, he began to fear that diamond mining had left him suddenly bereft of reason. Such a great stone could not be a diamond. He thought of the possibility of it being attached to rock. Something never before found in diamond mining. By the aid of a larger blade on his pocket, knife he finally dislodged the gem and took it to the camp, where it was found to weigh 3024½ carats, or nearly a pound and a half. But what is more, the great crystal was but half of a former crystal, the other half, according to calculations of experts, being if anything larger than the one found. Since that date the search for the "other half of the Cullinan" has been going on.

The origin of diamonds is a matter that long has puzzled geologists. The most acceptable theory is that they were formed under terrific pressure at great depths in the earth by the decomposition of carbon dissolved in the molten, plutonic magma of the earth and forced to the surface through volcanic action.

Diamonds Found in Meteorites.
The great Kimberly district of South Africa is a network of apparently volcanic pipes. They are irregular shaped, round or oval pipes, extending vertically downward to unknown depths, and becoming narrower as the depth increases. They are considered to be volcanic necks filled from below with a heterogeneous mixture, and cemented with the famous "blue ground" in which the diamonds are hidden.
It was at one time thought that the diamond was of cosmic origin and fell from the skies in meteorites. In a limited number of cases such was a fact. In the Devil's Canyon of Arizona there is ample evidence of the falling of a great shower of meteorites at some time in the remote past, even to a 600-foot crater with meteoric iron scattered about, as though some giant of the skies had punched the face of the earth with an iron hand and some of the iron had sloughed off. Dr. Foote, a mineralogist, while cutting a section of one of these meteorites, found that his tools were injured by something vastly harder than the meteorite iron. He examined the specimen chemically and soon announced to the world that the meteorite contained both black and transparent diamonds. Sir William Crookes, an eminent British scientist, however, regards this descent of precious stones from the sky as a "freak of nature," rather than a normal occurrence.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Victor Keen pitched for the Cardinals in the first game of the series with the Boston Braves, who recently obliged by cutting down the Pirates while Hornsby's men were taking six straight from the Brooklyn Dodgers. Larry Benton, a clever right hander, was on the hill for the Braves.

Bancroft's team is not in the best condition for the struggle with the second-place Cardinals. Burrus the regular first baseman, has been in a slump and Johnny Cooney, a pitcher, has been covering the bag. The catching department also is crippled, Gibson and Zach Taylor being on the injured list and Slemmer, a St. Louis boy, has been doing the bulk of the backstopping.

The game:
FIRST INNING.
CARDINALS—Blades was hit by a pitched ball. Southworth singled to right, sending Blades to third. Hornsby hit to Bancroft and Blades was run down. Bancroft to Slemmer to High to Slemmer. Bottomley walked, filling the bases. Bell hit into a double play, Gaudreau to Bancroft to Cooney. NO RUNS.

BRAVES—Smith singled to right. Bancroft fouled to O'Farrell. Hornsby threw out Welsh. High singled to right, scoring Smith and High took second on the throw to the plate. Brown singled to center, scoring High. Cooney singled to left, Brown stopping at second. Reinhardt replaced Keen. Gaudreau forced Cooney, Thelen to Hornsby. TWO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.
CARDINALS—O'Farrell tossed out Douthett. O'Farrell doubled to left. O'Farrell to third on Thelen's sacrifice fly to Smith. Reinhardt flied to Brown. NO RUNS.

BRAVES—Slemmer fouled to Bottomley. Benton was hit by a pitched ball. Slemmer walked. Bancroft forced Smith, Thelen to Hornsby. Benton taking third. Bottomley deflected Welsh's smash to Hornsby and ran back to first in time to get Hornsby's throw. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.
CARDINALS—Blades singles to center. Southworth forced Blades. Gaudreau to Bancroft. Hornsby forced Southworth. Bancroft unassisted, and when Bancroft threw past first, Hornsby was doubled trying for second. Cooney to Bancroft. NO RUNS.

BRAVES—High singled to right. Brown sacrificed. Reinhardt to Bottomley. Cooney hit to Reinhardt and High was run down. Reinhardt to Bell to Thelen to Bell. Gaudreau walked. Slemmer lined to Douthett. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.
CARDINALS—Bancroft threw out Bottomley. Bell fouled to Cooney. Douthett lined to Smith. NO RUNS.

BRAVES—Thelen threw out Benton. Smith beat out a hit to Thelen. Bancroft tripled to right center, scoring Smith. Welsh tripled over Southworth's head. Bancroft scoring. Reinhardt held Welsh on third while he threw out High. Bell threw out Brown. TWO RUNS.

CARDINALS—O'Farrell flied to Smith. Thelen fouled to Slemmer. Bancroft threw out Reinhardt. NO RUNS.

BRAVES—Bell threw out Cooney. Gaudreau singled to left. Gaudreau stole second and went to third on O'Farrell's wild throw. Slemmer fanned. Bell threw out Benton. NO RUNS.

PHILLIES DOWN REDS BY SCORING 7 RUNS IN OPENING INNING
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9.—A wild outburst by the Phillies in which they hammered Pete Donohue off the peak and got seven runs enabled the Reds to take the first game from the Reds here this afternoon. This attack came in the first inning and it was the first time in two years that the Phillies have beaten Donohue. Philie May, who relieved Donohue in the first inning, held the Phils to one hit for the rest of the game.

Hal Carlson, while batted hard at times, kept 13 hits off him caught. Both teams fielded poorly.
Cy Williams hit his eleventh home run of the season in the attack on Donohue.

Rickard Charges Dempsey Jeering Was a Frame-Up

Promoter Insists Tunney Is Logical Contender; Jack's Confidence Not Conclusive.

By SPARROW MCGANN.
(Copyright, 1926.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Tex Rickard's confidence in the popularity of the Dempsey-Tunney fight was jolted but not flattened this week, when Harry Wills was given a card of honor by Jack Dempsey with jabs at a card of bouts they attended in Madison Square Garden.

It was a rather dramatic incident and an embarrassing one for Dempsey when Wills walked down the aisle and was given an ovation as he stopped to shake hands with the champion. Most of the New York fight critics hailed it as further evidence that public opinion supports Wills in his demand for a chance at the title.

Rickard, however, was mad clear through and openly charged that the whole affair was a carefully laid plan to embarrass himself as well as Dempsey. Tex may be upset a bit by this bitter pill, but he will not be swayed from his purpose. In fact he is said to be so thoroughly peeved that he is more determined to push the Dempsey-Tunney scrap through and leave Wills indefinitely out in the cold.

Rickard doesn't agree. This business of judging public opinion on the heavyweights' little dispute is a trifle difficult. Last year a number of newspapers conducted a poll among fight fans to find out whom they considered the logical contender for the heavyweight title. Wills led the field.

Rickard differs with the result of the straw vote. He points to the large number of applications coming in from all parts of the country for tickets to the Dempsey-Tunney fight. This would seem to indicate that the fight has struck popular fancy. Tex is filling the reservations away at the rate of 600 a day.

Dempsey will pitch his campaign of the Saturday night fight and the chances are that the spectators will begin to flock in at so much per throw to get a glimpse of the champion.

Dempsey says he is in fine condition and aching to fight any one. They have seen that Tunney was picked as his opponent. They all look alike to him.

The champion scoffs at the idea that the long vacation has done him any harm.

Students of form fail to agree with Dempsey. They have seen too many go by the wayside when called upon and the same old answer was sure to come: "Keep away too long. Never felt better in my life. Was sure I could go through with a good fight."

Tunney is not a man to trifle with. He may be a mechanical fighter and all that but the fact that Tunney is far and above the usual run of pugilists and has made him all the more dangerous.

Tunney is a student of the game. No doubt he has learned much from watching Dempsey in several battles and his fight with Gibbons was a postgraduate course in the art of fighting.

Looking out in the open away from the crowds of the city is another factor Tunney is counting on. He is determined to make the fight of his life and is leaving nothing undone to further that end.

Public Dempsey hints that he will surprise the wise ones and Tunney. Those who expect to see Dempsey fight his old battle are in for a disappointment. Jack says he is learning how to box and show his opponent a few tricks of which he is supposed to be a master.

Others have tried the same tack, changing their style of battle on the eve of an important fight. They failed and it may be that Jack Dempsey will be another.

Duenckel, With 15 Minutes Start, Wins River Swim

Frank Hutchison Takes Best Time Prize in Fifth Annual Meramec Struggle.

Leo Duenckel, representing Kiefer's Beach, favored by a 15-minute handicap, won the fifth annual river swim, the fifth annual mile Meramec River swim, yesterday afternoon from a field of 24 contestants. Duenckel's time for the distance was 72 minutes 39.3 seconds.

Charlie Pace of the New Coliseum Athletic Club finished second with a 14-minute handicap, and Herbert Bernau, also of the New Coliseum, handicapped at 10 minutes, was third.

All of the swimmers that started finished the race, including the 52-year-old William Grossman, who was given a 20-minute handicap. Grossman's time was 111 minutes 43.3 seconds.

The real swimming honors of the event went to Frank Hutchison of the Forest Park Highlands pool, who, swimming from scratch with Charles Mudge, Virgil Moulton and Morris Jacobs, finished with the best time of 64 minutes 42.3 seconds. Moulton won the second time prize, with Mudge, only a few seconds behind him, third.

Jacobs Refuses Handicap.
Morris Jacobs, who had been allowed a two-minute handicap, refused to accept it and swam from scratch. The youthful athlete swam the course in the good time of 68 minutes and 56 seconds.

The time was two seconds slower than Mudge recorded last year but as the river is much lower, the performance of Hutchison was considered to be several minutes better than the record of 1925.

The race was from Valley Park to Meramec Highlands and was considered an excellent workout for the St. Louis athletes who will compete in the 10-mile Mississippi swimming championship August 21.

Next Sunday the one-mile swim for women will be the Meramec River feature.

RUMANIAN QUEEN WOULD VISIT U. S.; PLAN IS OPPOSED

Former Premier Withholds
His Sanction of Proposed Democratic Gesture of Queen Marie.

TRIP SEEN AS QUEST
FOR RICH SON-IN-LAW

For Her Majesty Wants to Take Only Princess Ili-ani and Attendants With Her.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World. Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.) PARIS, Aug. 4.—Queen Marie of Rumania wishes to go to the United States this winter on what she expects will be the most successful personal mission of her life.

She has the consent of King Ferdinand and also that of Premier Avaresco, but it is not yet certain that she will succeed in going. Her trip is opposed by former Premier Bratianu, who, in or out of office, is the most powerful man in Rumania. The Queen is flooded with invitations from the United States. During and since the war she has come to know hundreds of Americans, who wish her to visit their country some because they like her and believe in her, and others because they can thus have a Queen and Princess as guests. For, if she goes, the young Princess, Iliani, would accompany her.

Queen Marie has been trying to accept invitations for several years, but never until a fortnight ago did she succeed in getting the permission of the Rumanian Government to go to America in the manner she desires, as Europe's most democratic ruler on a social visit, without a ponderous program of official engagements.

Queen Chafes at Delay.
Queen Marie chafes at delay. In her frank way she says:

"I want to go while the people I know in America still will recognize me. I'm 50. I'm not always going to remain the same, you know."

Just before King Ferdinand came to France for the cure she got his consent, and he persuaded Avaresco to let her take the trip in her own way. Bratianu is opposed simply because he doesn't want the Queen to go in a democratic manner.

Prof. Lupu, leader of the Peasants' party, also is opposed to the Queen's going to America, and that is another obstacle. Lupu says Marie cannot pretend to be democratic when she obliged her son Carol to divorce his wife, Mme. Lambrino, after the birth of a legitimate child, because she was not royal. He is against all political activities on her part.

Marriage Quest in Visit Hinted.
However, is that Marie, the renowned matchmaker and "Mother-in-law of the Balkans," has half in mind the making of a democratic gesture, if she ever gets to the United States. By raising no objection if her beloved daughter, Iliani, makes a rich American marriage. Some of her American friends have been busy for months suggesting to Marie the names of eligible young American bachelors with millions of dollars, but Marie is keeping the question of choice to herself until she has a chance to look the country over. Also she has not entirely given up hope of getting the Prince of Wales.

Her royal cousins are worried over the whispers about the Queen's thoughts of getting an American son-in-law.

It is going a long way, they say, for a queen to write for newspapers on how to keep young, and even farther for her to lend her name to help advertise an American cosmetic, as she has done, but to bring a plain American son-in-law into the royal family of Europe, would be carrying her personal campaign into their own European circles. This they consider going too far.

Wants Democratic Visit.
Marie first thought of accepting her many American invitations while Bratianu was still premier, but Bratianu insisted that she take with her Prince Stirby, Bratianu's brother-in-law. Although Stirby is a favorite of the Queen's, she refused under these conditions. She said she wanted to go simply with Princess Iliani and their women in waiting. It was to be feminine occasion, with no ministers and no official control.

When Bratianu fell a few months ago, she began on Gen. Avaresco, who succeeded him. Avaresco saw no objection and was even pleased, knowing that Bratianu had folded her. Avaresco considered also it might prove good for Rumania and would support his program of opening Rumania to foreign investment, to which Bratianu is opposed.

The King agreed, partly because he is a very sick man—too sick to resist.

13 MONTHS TO LIVE

The Love Story of a Man Plagued to Commit Suicide After His Honeymoon

By OCTAVUS ROY COHEN

(Copyright, 1926.)

CHAPTER 25.

The Last Few Days.

THE ensuing two weeks were filled with forced gaiety, a mad seeking for nepenthe. They eschewed theaters, jealous of any diversion which forced upon them the necessity for silence or which flung them into the society of others. And yet when they were together, they would sit wordlessly for hours at a time—thinking, thinking—and they smiled in pitiful masquerade at each other; but the light which shone from the eyes of each was somber with lurking tragedy, and they pretended bravely not to see the Great Shadow which hovered always near at hand.

Garry came to dinner one night, and Garry saw that something was radically wrong. She dismissed the theory of friction between them; she could not mistake the love in the glances they bent upon each other—long, caressing looks, almost like physical contact.

It was only when she was bidding them good night—they had taken her home in Alan's little coupe—that she dared a word.

"Young folks," she said pleadingly, "there's trouble hovering about you. I have old eyes, but wise ones—and I can see it. I'm not asking questions. But I'm telling you that if an old woman's advice is ever wanted—"

Alan kissed her. "Garry, you're a dear. I want you always to remember that I regard you as a mother."

"And I," said Beverly, "always will."

Garry stared after the car as they drove away. A mantle of fear cloaked her. Then she turned and went into the house—the grim, red-carpeted boarding house where Alan had stayed for so long. She tried to convince herself that her instinct was at fault—but she knew better. Garry knew trouble too intimately to mistake signs.

lay on her bed wide-eyed until sheer exhaustion brought sleep.

The tenth of the month! The tenth day of the thirteenth month! The first of the final ten days of grace!

Alan found thinking difficult. He meditated in a world of unreality—and even yet he had no thought to renege. He had given his word, he had accepted performance from Andrew North; he himself, would not shirk or further plead for mercy. The streak of steel in the tall, slim frame of Alan Beckwith was asserting itself; he faced the end with horror and with loathing, but without physical fear.

He knew, too, that North was taking no chances; North never did. Squint had an assistant—at least one; a vicious, squat young fellow of unpleasant visage and frowny countenance, who had been a month since was gone now; he was a prisoner just as surely as though in the death cell of the State penitentiary. And he had been a handiwork of so inexperienced a killer as Nick Webb's life had been taken, the brief and informal investigation by the police—the unsolved mystery. Should his own name fall there would be a reputation of that; he would be killed. Perhaps there would be more of a hue and cry because he himself was not of the underworld.

But Andrew North was safe. He should not be involved directly. Through it all North had kept magnificently in the background; calm, merciless, sinister.

Dinner was finished. Ellen had left—a new Ellen these last few days. A woman who showed the strain. Ellen liked Beckwith—she almost loved Beverly. She had yearned over them—and dared not suggest flight. Above all tender emotions Ellen's fear of Andrew North rose paramount.

Even Beverly's blind horror of the man was incomparable to the terror which he held for Ellen.

Lines had appeared in Ellen's face and she had gone about her work mechanically and in her heart there had grown a fierce hatred for this man who calmly decreed that Alan's life was forfeit, that young love—clean love—should not be carried to fruition; that Beverly should become a widow without ever having been a wife.

Quietly and unobtrusively Alan put his affairs in order. He retained his positions with Starr and Watkins; perhaps they might be of assistance to Beverly after he was gone. He even spoke to Dan Watkins in a casual way:

"If anything ever happened to me, Mr. Watkins, and Mrs. Beck with needed any advice—"

"Hah! Healthy chap like you peering into the hereafter! I'm surprised at you, Beckwith; absolutely surprised."

Alan simulated a joviality which he did not feel—

"In time of life prepare for death," he smiled. "Really, though, Mr. Watkins, I think so many young men are reprehensible in their neglect of what will happen to their families—afterwards. And while Mrs. Beckwith is a sort of business woman—there's always the time when a woman needs the advice of a man.

"Send her to me, Alan." It was the first time the bluff realist had used the first name and he did it shyly. "I'll see that she comes out right side up. But meanwhile, don't you go cashing in. We need you in this office. There's no telling, you know. Starr and I are getting old—we're both above 40; and the day might come when we'll need a new partner so we can have more time for golf and trap-shooting."

Alan flushed. "You're mighty kind to me—you've been that way ever since the day I came here."

"You have a way with you, my lad. It's what has enabled you to sell so many lots. You're a freak. Personality—that's your all over. You'd have made a smashing success as an actor."

And Alan smiled a smile which Dan Watkins could not understand. "I wonder—" was what Alan said.

Tonight he sat in the big chair with Beverly curled on his lap. There was so much to say that they made no attempt to say it. Beverly knew that argument was fruitless; Alan intended to go through with his agreement.

She worshiped him for the rigid honor code—and prayed that he might digress from it just this once. She knew the danger of such an attempt—but even danger was better than a dread certainty.

October: a chill blast howled around the corner of the Avonmont, carrying with it a melody of street noises. In an adjoining apartment some one was torturing a saxophone, and Beverly envied that person. The weird, walling notes betokened the joyousness of the player. . . . It was something which one does in the full power of life's enjoyment. She gave ear to the raucous shoutings of newsboys with their shrill calls of Wux-tree! Perhaps, a week from now, they would be howling that very call beneath her window and the headlines would tell of Alan's death.

Quar. Tonight she sat very, very close to him; cuddled in the shelter of his surprisingly strong arms; her cheek against his—and a week hence—He felt her figure grow taut and he stroked her shoulder and bade her relax.

"Try to think, sweetheart."

"Try! I try all day, dearest; all day and all night. It is the nights that are hardest. I can't help thinking. God knows I would if I could. And in one week—two weeks—"

"We'll have had each other for a year, Beverly."

"And we shall be without each other for all eternity."

"No—I shall be waiting."

And then again silence; silence pregnant with meaning, atroph with love. And into this silence broke—

A New Development.

The ringing at the door bell was violent and imperious. It sounded and sounded with an insistent hysterical summons. Alan leaped to the door and slammed it behind the wild-eyed girl.

Mae half ran into the living room. Her bosom was rising and falling with the effect of tense emotion and recent physical strain. Her flagrant beauty was dimmed by the terror which shone from her eyes.

"Johnny!" she gasped. "Where is he?"

Beverly crossed over and put her arms around the girl. "Calm down, Mae—please. What is the matter?"

"This Johnny. Good God! I can't calm down. Where is Johnny?"

"We don't know."

"Hasn't he been here?"

"Not since last night."

"He slept here, then?"

"Yes."

"What did he talk about?"

"I don't know."

She flung around toward Alan. "Did he talk with you—and Andrew North?"

"Ye-es. But that was natural."

She threw back her head and laughed. It was shrill, hysterical laughter and it rang eerily through the room.

"Natural. He's talked of nothing else. He's been lashing himself into a frenzy. Alan—you've got to go get him. Go quick!"

The girl was rapidly regaining control of herself. Alan put strong hands on her shoulders and shook her.

"Talk straight!" he commanded harshly. "Tell me what's wrong. You say I must go for Johnny. Where do you think he is?"

Mae's eyes burned into Alan's. She drew herself erect and clenched her hands into tight little fists.

"He is at the Royal Arms Apartments," she said in a heavy monotone. "He went there to kill Andrew North!"

More "Ideal Girls" as Marguerite Martyn Pictures Them From Descriptions

HERE four more men, leaders in their professions, give their ideas of their Ideal Girl and Miss Marguerite Martyn has illustrated her conception of their descriptions. This is the fourth and concluding article on Ideal Girls.

By Arthur Guiterman.

This Is She.

On order that must be obeyed
I sing of a dear little maid;
A mirthfully serious,
Sober, delicious,
Gently imperious
Maid.

And first we'll consider her eyes (Alike as to color and size);
Her winkable, blinkable,
Merrily twinkable,
Simply unthinkable
Eyes.

Then, having a moment to spare,
We turn our attention to hair:
Her tendrily curvaceous, Tumbly and whirling,
Super-superlative
Hair.

Forbear to dismiss with a shrug
Her nose, undeniably pug;
Her strictly permissible,
Turn-up-like-thisable,
Urgently kissable
Pug.

Now, moving a point to the south,
We come to an Actual Mouth;
A coral, pearlescent,
Argumentuous,
Mainly melliferous Mouth.

Observe, underneath it, a chin,
Connoting the dimple within;
A steady, reliable,
Hardly defiable,
True, undeniably
Chin.

By all that is fair! It appears
We'd almost forgotten her ears!
Those never neglectable,
Tinted, delectable,
Highly respectable Ears.

And last, let us speak of herself,
That blithe little gypsy and elf;
Her quite unignorable,
Absence-deplorable,
Wholly adorable
Self.

By Haskell Coffin.

HASKELL COFFIN has well been called the "dean of illustrators." When you see him you detect the distinction about the erect carriage of his tall figure, about his long, straight hair, his forehead brushed above with steel gray hair. There is a certain elegance about the magazine cover ladies he paints.

"Do not think," he warned, "that when I look for beauty in a girl's face I consider it as an abstract thing and do not take account of character. If a girl hasn't a good temperament she is not beautiful to me. Character is very important. There must be something behind the mere features."

"The first thing I look for when I select a model is a beautiful nose. Of course, if a girl has too sharp a chin, then the gate for her. If her upper lip is too long, just so short is the story of her beauty."

"The point is this. I often select a model who has not such a beautiful face, but who has beauty and spirituality of nature. A merely pretty face is boring. It does not inspire the artist in his painting. An interesting face is inspiring to the artist, as well as to every one else."

"Eyes which sparkle because the girl is in love—in love with life, her work or her sweetheart—make the sort of beauty which overshadows defects in features."

"Fine, well-shaped eyes are the dominant beauty of the face. The eye is a marvelous organ for beauty with its depth of limpid transparency."

"The nose is the handle to the face, in men as well as in women. In the nose you open the story of the face and character."

"The mouth shows the strength or weakness of the individual, and especially of the passions. A receding chin usually denotes indecision and lack of 'get there'."

"A face of harmonious proportions makes for beauty. A long face is like a horse's face," he laughed. "A fat face warns of a fat head. A round doll face signals 'nobody home.' The face of delicate charm is the face of delicate angles. The most perfect lines, I think, are in the classic contour with a straight nose not quite as long as the Grecian.

"Plucking eyebrows and painting the face is like gliding refined gold. Women are gold of the highest quality when they are charming."

His manner of speaking of women is idyllic, a bit of the old school, you know.

"Girls paint because they see other girls paint; thus the momentum of the style grows. But girls make a mistake if they think they paint to fool the men. Men detect it. The only thing a man can think of when he sees a painted face is a woman of question."

And Mr. Coffin, bending his tall frame, bowed adieu.

By Jascha Heifetz.

"WOMEN are musical. They are sensitive. They are appreciative more than men. I would not have them different," softly pronounced Jascha Heifetz, master violinist.

"If they would all study themselves and dress to bring out the tones in their coloring and their personality the world would be a more harmonious place. Woman's dress has a great effect on the artistic key of a country. Women should remember that in the orchestra of life they were meant to keep alive the spiritual key in the music."

By Charles D. Mitchell.

"IT'S a hard life for us illustrators today!" exclaimed Charles D. Mitchell. "We can make very few differences in women pictorially. Today the butante and the shop girl look the same.

"I like individuality and don't see it any more. I see a woman with individuality the day, the first one in a group, almost took my breath away. She was a refined lady, simply and gantly dressed, with a touch of distinction, and with the common sense of the object of your affection. Every woman is the ideal woman for some one."

"The only thing I would like girls to change—his tone struck an echo in his heart—"is that they be more individual. Different pieces bring out different beauty in the violin. You cannot play every piece the same. Just so every girl cannot dress the same. Girls of today are all bobbing their hair, not because it is becoming to the shape of their head, but because some one else is doing it."

"What do you want them to do to their hair?"

I asked, coloring their hair in mimicry. They pay for their clothes; Lord knows they have enough mirrors; but they don't think right."

They may be beautiful yet not at all interesting. Haskell Coffin.

Women pictorially. Today the same and the shop girl look the same. "I like individuality and you don't see it any more. I saw a woman with individuality the other day, the first one in ages; and almost took my breath away. She was a refined lady, simply and elegantly dressed, with a touch of distinction, and with fine carriage. Generally speaking, she is no more than a woman, but she is a woman. Women don't pay attention to carrying any more. They haven't the bearing that puts them across. "I don't understand women," he admitted as a smile played in the shadows of his thin lips. "They spend their lives thinking about clothes and trying to look well and yet they only imitate. They wouldn't dare do something different."

"They are not wearing the style or 'Oh, no, I've never worn that sort of thing," they insist. (Mr. Mitchell reproduced the wall in mimicry.) They pay attention to clothes; Lord knows there is enough mirror, but they don't do the thing right."

"What do you want them to do?" I asked, coloring crimson.

And Mr. Mitchell, whose eyes in his illustrations get across with a punch, gave his graphic indication.

"I like things," he said, "just a bit different from the usual, but good taste and in keeping with one's own style."

Illustration the Porch

They have porches and of common sense usually use them in the summer. The porches of course, if they do so you want to porch not only as at possible but also as a place to sit. There are lovely wicker and fibre chairs and tables and chaise longue. They had in all sorts of their natural finish and complete suites. There are also porches and decorative and aquarium stands. If you object you can make a sort of Coral Gables porch. "But" is ever with us very much of an objection. A sense of color and a sense of color together many objects might otherwise seem of place in each other's way on a porch.

The first place try to have done in not more than a second note or two, that it is the right one. A yellow or lemon yellow, or an excellent additional color. Have your cushions and slip covers, if any, definite scheme of color. The using cushions, don't get variety by the plain-colored material. If you can't have your cushions, don't have them. If you can't have your cushions, don't have them. If you can't have your cushions, don't have them.

The Queer Swimmers

The ignorant say things aren't so; The wise man always wants to know.

—Old Mother Nature.

REDDY FOX found all kinds of interesting things along the seashore. "Live and learn," he would say, "live and learn. I can believe almost anything since I've learned that a lobster can get out of that hard shell of his. There certainly is a lot to see here along the seashore. Now, I wonder why I never find any of the owners of these shells in the sand or mud like the clams. They look to me like the shells of very fancy clams."

Reddy was looking down at a shell which was almost round, except at the place where it should have been hinged to another shell just like it. At that point were two little wings. This shell had pretty little scallops, but look as he would, Reddy couldn't find anything but half shells. "I'll have to ask Barker the Seal about these," thought Reddy.

As usual, Barker was sitting on his favorite rock, very close to the shore. Reddy trotted over there, carrying one of these shells in his mouth.

"Hello, Neighbor Fox! What have you there?" inquired Barker.

"It's a shell," said Reddy. "I have found ever so many of these shells, but I never have found one with anything in it."

"Where have you looked?" inquired Barker.

"Everywhere," replied Reddy. "Excepting in the water," said Barker, chuckling again.

"They look to me like some kind of a clam, and clams are usually in the mud or sand. I have dug them up lots of times," said Reddy.

Until the Doctor Comes

IVY POISONING.

A HEAT SPELL, following heavy rainfalls, results in a riotous growth of all kinds of plant life. Much of this is poisonous. Thus poisoning is caused by an irritating resinous substance in the sap of numerous plants. There are from 60 to 70 varieties which may give rise to poisoning in susceptible persons.

The commonest variety is poison ivy and this plant is distinguished from other suspected creepers by the fact that it has three leaves while others have five. Beware, then, of the three-leaved creeper.

The sap of the plant, when it comes in contact with the skin, gives rise to intense irritation. I have so often mentioned a specific or "sure cure" for ivy poisoning, but it is one of those things that bears endless repetition.

It was discovered by a physician and contains two drams of sulphate of guanine in six ounces of water. Keep the parts continually moist with the solution. The time-honored prescription of calomel, 15 grains, and lime water, four ounces, mixed and applied on gauze, is also quickly remedial.

It will be well to keep the patient quiet, administer a brisk purgative, and adhere to a bland diet until the symptoms subside.

Hold the right arm straight out in front of you, with the middle finger in a direct line with the nose. Then slowly bring the finger toward the nose keeping the eyes on it, then slowly draw it away. Do not do this more than once the first few times, gradually increasing until you can do it five times without causing dizziness.

Close the eyes lightly, then place the middle finger gently in the center of the upper lid. Look downward, and rotate the finger on the lid with so light a pressure that you can scarcely feel it. Do this while slowly counting to 20 and repeat on other eye.

The last of these exercises may be done at any time you think of it and may be done several times each day to advantage. Open the lids about half way, then, placing the third finger in the corner of the eye towards the nose, draw it gently outward over the upper lid and backward over the upper lid. Repeat 10 times. This exercise stimulates circulation, brings about relaxation and is splendid to prevent wrinkles from coming around the eyes.

The following exercises are done while lying down and may cause a slight dizziness, but if done only a few times at first this will soon disappear.

Beauty Exercises for Eyes

By Lucretia Bori

THE exercises for the eyes which follow are the pet indulgences of a friend of mine who is celebrated for her beautiful eyes, and she attributes much of their loveliness to the daily doing of these few simple exercises.

Rolling the eyes in the simplest of them all, and is done by holding the lids wide apart and rotating the eyeballs 10 times to the right then 10 times to the left, very quickly.

Next look straight ahead until the eyes tingle. Then close them and count slowly to 10. Open and repeat.

Look straight ahead and lower and raise the upper lids 20 times without moving the lower lid.

Hold the head perfectly rigid and look downward as far as possible. Rest while counting to three with the lids closed, then repeat 10 times.

Still keeping the head rigid, look as far as possible to the right, then to the left, close the eyes while counting to three, look as far as possible to the left, then to the right. Repeat 10 times.

Look to the right, downward, to the left, upward, keeping the head rigid, rest and repeat five times.

The following exercises are done while lying down and may cause a slight dizziness, but if done only a few times at first this will soon disappear.

Baking Powder.

ALTHOUGH baking powder is now used the world over, it was originally a "Yankee notion" and is still used in much larger quantities in the United States and Canada than in other lands.

The invention of modern commercial baking powder is usually attributed to Prof. Eben Norton Horsford, who was born at Melrose, N. Y., 183 years ago. He became a civil engineer and chemist and won wide fame in the latter science.

In 1847 he joined the Harvard faculty and served with distinction as Rumford professor of applied science for 16 years, retiring to become the head of a chemical concern in Providence, R. I.

He made a number of important chemical discoveries in addition to popularizing baking powder. The ordinary culinary article has only come into general use in the last 60 years or so, but within a few years of its introduction in America it has almost entirely superseded the primitive way of making bread, biscuit, cakes, etc., by the use of yeast, sour milk and soda.

In cheap baking powders alum is used as a substitute for cream of tartar or tartaric acid.

The Man on the Sandbox by L. Davis

A HOT ONE.

THERE was a man in our town Who had a wooden leg. Upon the sidewalk in the sun He tried to fry an egg. And when he found the egg was done He started to retire. But found alas! he couldn't run-- His leg had caught on fire.

THE SYSTEM.

I N Chicago, so they say, The gangsters get away With murder in their settle- ment of grudges. When a citizen they've shot And the trail is getting hot, They simply throw a banquet for the Judges.

High officials gather there, At the underworld affair. Promoted by the Gennas or O'Bannions; And they seem to be quite proud To be numbered with the crowd With whom they fraternize like boon companions.

QUITE SO.

Chester Falk, the world's cham- pion bullpen pitcher, is showing signs of making good. All of which augurs well for the Browns if you believe in signs.

The man on the sandbox says when the fans start dropping trav- eling bags down in the field to ball players there are two ways to look at it. It might be taken either as a compliment or a hint. "English Fans Like U. S. Films." But they are not crazy about our baseball.

"Hog Calling 'Take' Place With Arts." It's getting to be quite a respect- able calling.

Following his recent activities in "pork barrel" investigations, Senator Reed has been invited to judge a hog-calling contest in Missouri.

When you feel inclined to com- plain about the heat think of that hot summer when we had bag- worms, too.

By minding his pints and quarts many a bootlegger has run a shoe- string into a tannery.

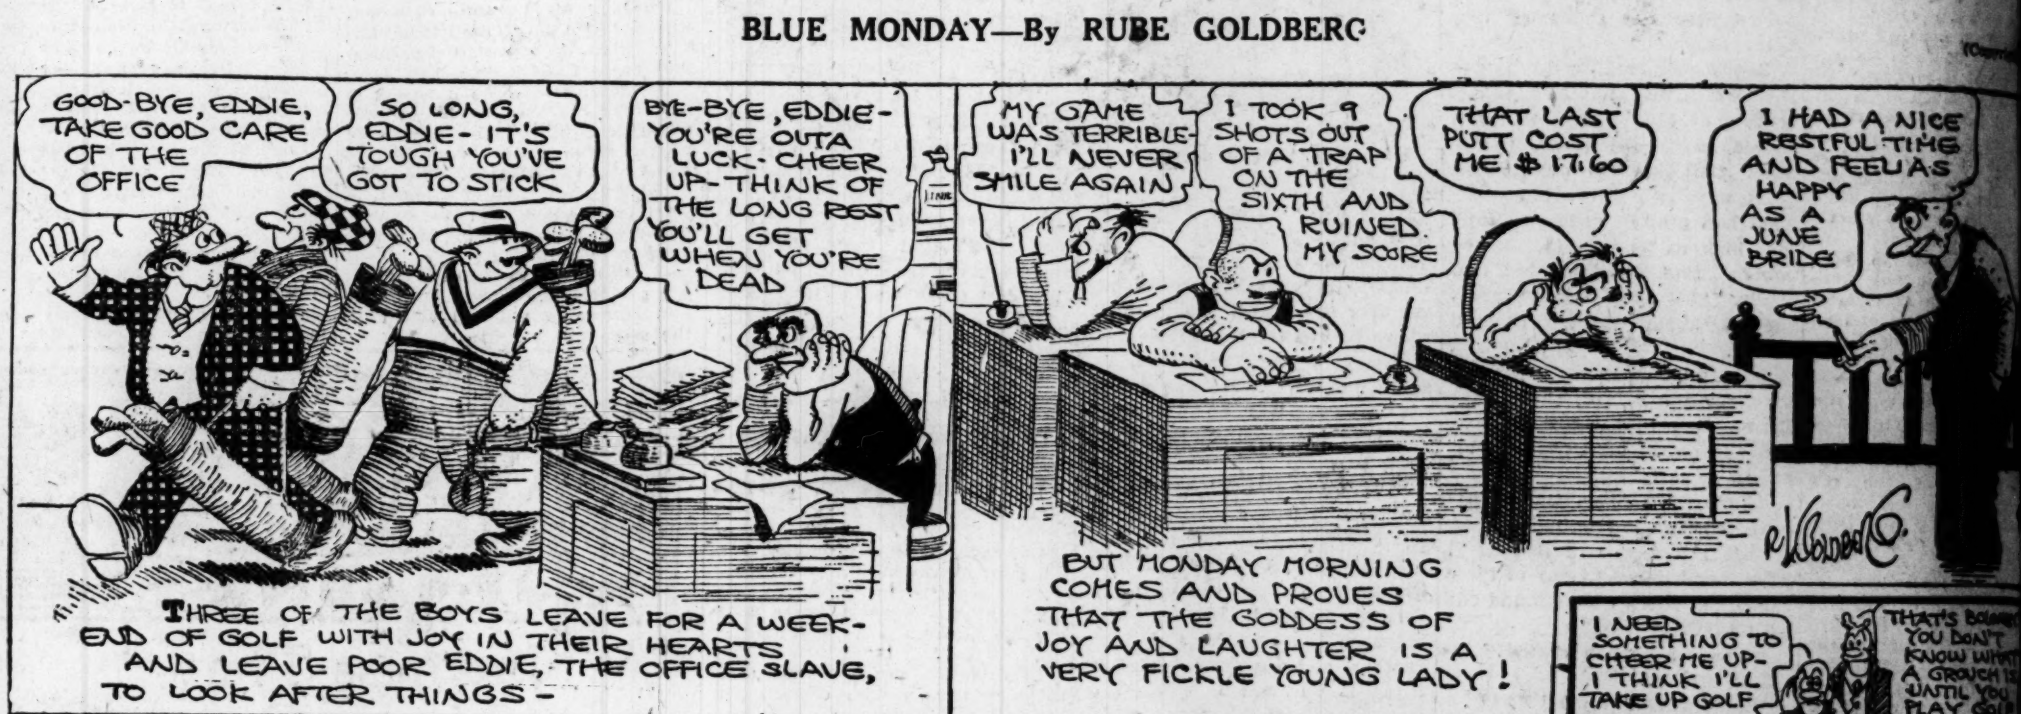

Having finished with the Illinois probe Senator Reed will now have some time to devote to his hog- calling engagements.

See where the men of Mantua, Italy, have been forbidden to dance during the present summer. Tough luck, boys, but if summer comes can winter be far behind?

As nothing is said about the girls we take it the more or less fair sex can either hoof it together or sit it out.

You can rent one room and a kitchen in Vienna for 65 cents a month. There must be a catch in it somewhere. Maybe the place is full of yodlers and cornet players.

BECKER'S AWARDS OF STATE PRINTING DRAW COMPLAINTS

Two Publishers Say Factors Other Than Political or Personal Guide Secretary of State.

CHARGES FOLLOW BANK CRASH INQUIRY

Official Under Fire, in Statement, Denies His Paper Owes Englewood Depository Anything.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 10.—Attorney-General Gentry, who is advising Finance Commissioner French in the inquiry into the closing of the Citizens' Security Bank of Englewood, selected by Secretary of State Charles U. Becker as a depository for State automobile license funds, today looked into another matter relating to the Secretary of State's office, and not connected with the Englewood bank.

Two callers, publishers of Republican newspapers in different Missouri towns, talked with the Attorney-General of the methods used by the Secretary of State's office in distributing constitutional printing among the papers, for the 1932 and 1934 elections.

The printing consists of all the constitutional amendment, initiative and referendum proposals which are to be on the State-wide ballot in the November election. These are printed five times in one paper in each of the 114 counties of Missouri, and the selection of the papers rests with the Secretary of State. The rate of pay, averaging 48 cents an inch of column with for each insertion, is liberal in comparison with the advertising rates of most of the papers.

Other Considerations Alleged.

It has been taken as a matter of course that the printing should be awarded on a political basis to Republican papers now, as under some former administrations it went to Democratic papers. Where there is more than one Republican paper in a county, it has been the prerogative of the Secretary of State to favor the paper friendly to himself.

The two callers today, however, charged that other considerations than mere political and personal favor had been mentioned in some counties, in connection with the printing award. The Attorney-General said their statements would be submitted to him in writing later, and might result in an inquiry into the handling of the constitutional printing.

A statement was issued today from Becker's office, over Becker's name, regarding the Englewood bank matter. The bank, a suburb of Kansas City, was closed Saturday.

"I had no knowledge of notes or overdrafts on the bank when I selected it as depository," Becker said. The selection was made in the ordinary course of business. Any suggestion of knowledge by me as to any adverse condition in the bank must be purely political.

"The newspaper I publish at Englewood Springs owes the bank nothing," Becker's statement continued. "If it did, considering its securities, it would be the character of business any bank would desire."

Tells Method of Collection.

The statement told of the method of collecting the automobile license fees at branch offices throughout the State, depositing the funds in local banks, and checking the money out of these banks to the State Treasurer. This process involved delay at some seasons, Becker said, but except at the busiest season the money reaches the Treasurer within two or three weeks. He termed the arrangement of advantage to the State.

As has been pointed out, the State gets not more than 2 per cent interest on the license funds in Becker's depositories, and gets 3.5 to 3.6 per cent on funds deposited by the State Treasurer in banks.

Becker said the present method of handling the license funds did not originate with him, but was used by his predecessor. He has now been in office five years. He declared that the State would suffer no loss by the closing of the Englewood bank as he had a personal bond from its officers to indemnify him. He has stated that he requires such bonds from the officers of each bank selected by him as depository.

"I had no knowledge of the bank's private dealings, whether with Re-
